

Candidate Night at Temple Emanuel

Sheriff Hopefuls Debate

By TIM SCHUSTER

KINGSTON It was clear that those people present at Temple Emanuel Thursday were concerned primarily with the three-way race for sheriff in Ulster County.

While Thomas Mayone and Yvonne Walliser were asked their views on everything one might expect in an average campaign, incumbent Sheriff William Martin was at times bombarded with specific inquiries into recent matters at the county jail, including the Jerome Gabell case, and moderator Len Cane had to ease tension with a well-placed joke or by cutting off diatribes from the audience.

And the candidates for state offices, at first ignored by the audience, became actively involved as the two hours of discussion ranged from abortion, to capital punishment, to financing of public education.

State candidates present were State Senator Richard Schermerhorn and Democratic opponent King James Weyant and Liberal opponent Paul Atkinson; Democratic Assembly candidate Maurice Hinchey, and Mel Mones filling in for H. Clark Bell, the incumbent.

First, the sheriff's race: Yvonne Walliser bases her campaign on "complete change in the Sheriff's Department," with the emphasis on rehabilitation in the jail. She cited estimated recidivism at 90 per cent at the Golden Hill facility, adding, "You start preventing crime by working in the jail."

She felt that other sheriff's duties, outside the jail, should be primarily to coordinate the available law enforcement agencies in the county. "The sheriff is defined as the chief peace officer," she said. "We have a short term jail, but programs are still feasible," said Ms. Walliser, citing specifically work release, segregation of prisoners, and "special attention to youthful offenders."

Mayone, after giving his record of 26 years in law enforcement, said he had worked closely with many law enforcement agencies, but had problems in cooperation with the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Mayone termed the department "very lax during the last nine years," and of jail reform said, "The majority of inmates in a county jail are not convicted, but accused. We should try at least to make their stay there a little comfortable."

Regarding the controversy surrounding several aspects of the present Sheriff's Department, Mayone commented, "We must return respect to the Sheriff's Department. . . . If this is a political hatchet job, it's the first bipartisan one I've ever seen. . . . I wish I were half the politician he (Martin) is, but I'm a better law enforcement man."

Martin pronounced in opening remarks that "ability, integrity, and character have been my standard," remarking that when he took office he had "nothing to work with."

After a resume of the Jerome Gabell case upon request (upholding his previous statements concerning the fugitive who worked for the department), he said of Mayone, "after his unwarranted attacks on me I could have contempt for my opponent. . . . And of Ms. Walliser, he said he would not like to see a wife and mother subjected to 'mob violence' and attendant atrocities of police work."

Regarding the Gabell matter, Martin said he would do it again at a cost of $180 to "protect the lives of two people," correction officers allegedly the target of a prisoner.

And of the reported bankrupt personal services fund of the Sheriff's Department he said the problem was the Legislature did not budget enough money for the new jail, not taking higher costs into account.

For state assembly: Mones said there is "no substitute for experience" in speaking of Bell, adding that "he is extremely prone to use the media" to keep people informed. He said Bell has attracted money to the county, giving as examples improvements at Belleayre Ski Center and monies funneled here through the Job Development Authority.

Hinchey pointed to the 45 per cent of the electorate that voted for him two years ago, adding that people are wanting changes in every aspect of government even more today.

He suggested shifting the burden of taxation from the poor and middle income persons to those with more wealth, stating, "There is a relation between success in society and responsibility."

"If you're satisfied with the status quo, don't vote for me, because when I go to Albany I'll raise hell," he commented. And, regarding his opponent, he stated, "Clark Bell's biggest achievement is getting his picture in the newspaper and his name on the radio," and "Why isn't Bell doing something about the poverty level income and unemployment in Ulster County?"

For state senate: Schermerhorn, after recounting his accomplishments in Albany, said, "Prices are high; we have to do more." He came out in favor of strong penalties "to deter crime," and defended his Con Edison aid from government because "they were going under."

Weyant, characterizing himself as a "sound businessman," said once that people no longer should vote strictly along party lines, and then said they should elect Democrats because "we need a good housecleaning; let's get our house in order."

He also denied Schermerhorn had anything to do with highway department appropriations in the recent past, calling it a "political play," and suggested broadening the tax base for public education by taking them off property tax rolls.

Atkinson, who has not received official word from Albany on whether he was in fact placed on the ballot, expounded admittedly liberal viewpoints, stating his background is one of an activist.

He said corruption is not only burglary, but having elected officials represent vested interests instead of the common man. "When Con Ed wants a love song, they call Senator Schermerhorn up," he said.

"We need someone to fight the corporate powers," he said, admitting that he expected to "get shafted from every direction" if he gets to Albany. Atkinson said he saw very little difference between Schermerhorn and Weyant's views.

Legislature Will Continue Jail Inquiry

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON The life of the Ulster County Committee investigating Sheriff William B. Martin and the administration of the County Jail has been extended by the Ulster County Legislature which Thursday night also questioned the fact that the sheriff has reportedly added 12 additional deputies to his staff since Aug. 23.

Several legislators including the chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) said they felt it was "strange" that Martin has hired so many of late. William West (R-Dist. 4) recalled that Martin assured the Legislature when it was agreed to take in Rockland County prisoners here, that additional personnel would not be needed. Savago emphasized that the sheriff did not hire the extra men for the jail but for duties outside of the jail.

The board agreed to a transfer of funds in the Sheriff's Department account to take care of food expense for the Rockland prisoners but also agreed to hold back on a transfer of funds for the sheriff's personal services account until the sheriff provides "a detailed report" of the need for additional money.

The vote to continue the existence of the committee studying the sheriff and the jail passed 26 to 7 and the vote on transferring funds for the food passed 33-0. Those voting against the continuation of the committee included: George Barthel, Eugene Houck, Louis Resnick, all Dist. 7 Democrats; also City Democrats Larry Kithcart, James Carroll and Eugene Perry; and, Larry Thornton, Dist. 1 Democrat.

During discussion on whether or not to continue the work of the committee, Barthel asked if the sheriff committee of the legislature has done anything in the way of constructive advice. It was pointed out that the committee does not have subpoena powers and that was why the investigative committee was formed.

Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist. 6) wanted "positive action" and James Gilpatrick (D-City) added that "it is important that we get to the bottom of this."

Disagreeing, Houck said he has seen nothing in report "to warrant further investigation," while Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) said "it is not what is in the report but what has happened subsequently."

Richard D. Nace, said "it is worth the effort" if something is not criminally wrong, perhaps it is morally wrong.

"People should be concerned with what's happening," West said. It is important that we have a group monitoring the situation in view of the complete deterioration of the operation he said, adding "it is our moral obligation."

The legislature held in abeyance any action on accepting payment of the city's share of county taxes in three instead of two equal payments annually. County Attorney Abram Molyneux said a payment agreement, mutually satisfactory to the city and the county is being worked out, much like the agreements between the county and the various towns of the county.

The board also voted 25 to 8 against a study to consider the cost of a mosquito abatement program to control heavily infested areas, at an approximate cost of $285,000.

Other discussion centered on the matter of state-mandated salary increases for Ulster County's four county-level judges. The $6,000 raises effective July 1 bring their respective salaries to $37,075.

The adjustment in the salaries, which was defeated on before by the legislature, passed this time 24 to 9, apparently because enough legislators felt the judiciary and the state "got the message" of their dissatisfaction.

Louis M. Bevier (R-Dist. 8) changed his vote from a previous no to yes because he felt "we made our point."

Houck on the other hand voted not saying "we have to stand up and be counted" in day of fighting inflation. Richard D. Nace (R-Dist. 2) also said he couldn't, in complete conscience, vote for such a raise when nothing has been done in the last seven months about increasing county employee salaries.

Those voting the measure down including Debrosky, Houck, and Nace were: Barthel, Stephen G. Hyatt (R-Dist. 2), Perry, Resnick, Charles Scala (R-Dist. 1) and Brian R. White (Dist. 8).

Ford Believes He Did the Right Thing

DAVID EISENHOWER
(UPI Telephoto)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — (Nixon's) head threatening his health . . .

President Ford rejected Thursday night widespread criticism that his pardon of former President Richard Nixon was "precipitous."

"I thought I took a long time in making the decision," he told reporters at a state dinner honoring Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The timing of the pardon — one month after Ford succeeded Nixon — has aroused a popular outcry.

This was the first time Ford has spoken on the subject since he pardoned Nixon last Sunday.

When asked whether Nixon's physical and mental state had been a factor, he said amiably: "Read my speech."

In his statement Sunday, Ford had raised the specter of a "sword hanging over his head . . ."

Ford said that he had not talked to Nixon in three weeks.

He appeared in jovial spirits, unperturbed by the storm of controversy he evoked.

According to his press aides, Ford still believes strongly that he did the right thing. His close advisors say Ford was getting the word it all would die down in a week.

His wife Betty backed him up. "I think he made the right decision," she said.

While the White House has been immersed in Watergate for the past several days, aides say Ford had private reasons for acting on the pardon at that time.

But he denies as "absolutely untrue" speculation that he may have promised Ford has yet to reveal his final decision on the closely related issue of amnesty for Vietnam war draft dodgers and deserters.

Later in the day, the Senate adopted 55-24 a resolution urging Ford not to grant any future pardons in cases related to the 1972 presidential campaign until the defendants have been tried and all appeals completed.

It has no legal force, but it puts the Senate on record with an opinion.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., indicated the House might adopt a similar resolution.

For the six former Nixon aides who are awaiting trial in the Watergate cover-up case, the day was a double disappointment.

First they learned no pretrial pardons would come from the White House. Then U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica denied motions of three of them to delay or cancel their trial because of the pardon issue.

Lawyers for former Attorney General John N. Mitchell argued that by accepting pardon Nixon implied guilt, that jurors would impute this guilt to Nixon's aides and that this would deny them a fair trial.

for military deserters and draft evaders was taking shape, and should be unveiled soon.

Meanwhile, Ford and the Senate separately have arrived at the same policy: no pardons for Watergate defendants until they are brought to trial.

How far the understanding would go to ease the weeklong controversy over the pardon issue remained to be seen.

The circumstances of Ford's pardon of former President Nixon were still in dispute, and Ford has yet to reveal his final

Nixon Refuses to Enter the Hospital

By United Press International

Former President Richard M. Nixon is reported feeling better after another attack of phlebitis. But members of his family are concerned about his health and believe he should be hospitalized.

Nixon's White House physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, and Dr. John Lundgren of San Francisco were to examine him today.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, had been staying at the Palm Desert, Calif., estate of Walter H. Annenberg, the U.S. ambassador to Britain, since Sunday, when President Ford pardoned the former president for any crimes he might have committed while in office. They returned to San Clemente late this morning.

A source who was in telephone contact with the Annenberg estate said late Thursday that Nixon was "a little better," but feeling frustrated because he could not move around and must keep his swollen left leg elevated.

The same source said the family hoped the doctors would be able to talk him into entering the Eisenhower Memorial Hospital in Palm Springs, Calif., but that Nixon so far has refused.

An informed medical source in Washington also said Nixon has refused the urgings of his family to enter a hospital for treatment of the phlebitis, an inflammation of the veins, sometimes involving a potentially dangerous blood clot.

He said Nixon's left leg had swollen four inches in circumference below the knee.

Nixon's spokesman, Ronald L. Ziegler, has refused to discuss the former president's health and also has put restraints on Tkach's public statements.

But Nixon's sons-in-law, Edward Cox and David Eisenhower, have not felt themselves under this constraint.

Eisenhower said on the NBC Today Show Thursday that Nixon's health was "not good," his leg was swollen to twice normal size and he was depressed and unable to relax.

Eisenhower said later in a telephone interview that Nixon was "obviously low; just how low I don't know; I think it's a pretty rough period."

"With the pressure off — the grind of the presidency — I think he'll be in the mood again, looking for new things to do," he added.

Cox has been quoted as telling friends Nixon has been depressed and Cox felt someone should know about it.

Nixon suffered an attack of phlebitis last June and undertook his tour of the Middle East that month against his doctors' advice. The doctors later said there was a clot in his leg but it no longer was dangerous.

A Falcon Is Killed, Another Missing

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ Adam and Eve, the pair of peregrine falcons born in captivity and released into the wild in July in an experiment designed to bolster the dwindling ranks that endangered species, are probably dead—Eve is sure.

Dr. Walter Tkach, chief environmental conservation officer at the State Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, said he has vowed not to give up.

Meng believes the birds were killed, by a "kook," he says, to protect the song birds around the New Paltz campus.

Eve's severed wing was discovered last week in a wooded portion of the campus. Adam hasn't been seen since the day before that.

"It's something that just isn't believable," Meng told the Freeman Wednesday.

Shortly before the bird's disappearance, a call complaining about the birds was received by George Odell, chief environmental conservation officer at the Region 3 Headquarters of the State Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz.

Odell said the caller complained about the birds killing protected birds, birds other than the pigeons which flock thickly around the New Paltz campus. The caller was advised that Meng was licensed to have the birds by the state, Odell said. From what the male caller said, according to Odell, going to do something about it.

Peregrine falcons are born in the spring, and the death of Adam and Eve kills Meng's experiment for this year, but he pledged to try again next year, and in succeeding years, "even though we have one kook around here."

Meng is conducting his experiment in conjunction with Cornell University, where Adam and Eve were born. The experiment is a world first, the "hacking back," or release into the wild, of peregrines born in captivity. Meng was probably the first man in the world, and certainly the first fully documented, to breed the falcons in captivity.

If the birds were killed, the killer faces some heavy animal penalties if he is caught. There is a federal fine of $500 for the killing of peregrines, and a state fine of $200. Meng said there is a $500 federal reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of killers of peregrine falcons.

In writing of peregrine falcons, and their place in the natural order of things, Meng said, "The function of a predator is to kill the weaker and diseased individuals of their prey species."

"To some people this is very unpleasant, but it must be remembered that this is how nature works and results in more vigor and health in wild animal populations."

Friday the 13th — Knock Wood

Pat Jackson takes traditional precautions against the ill omens of Friday the 13th by knocking wood in Woodstock. Today is the first calendar coincidence of 1974 with an encore slated to occur in December. Down through the ages the combination of Friday and the number 13 have been considered double bad luck so caution is advised. (Freeman photo by Carey)

ANDREW J. SNYDER

Andrew J. Snyder Dies, Was Cement Executive

Andrew J. Snyder II, president and owner of Century Cement Manufacturing Co., Inc., Rosendale, died suddenly at his home on Lawrenceville Road, Rosendale, Thursday morning.

He was born in Rosendale Nov. 25, 1889, the son of the late Charles and Minnie Palen Snyder.

The Snyder family has been connected with the manufacturing of cement since the discovery of cement rock on the Jacob L. Snyder farm during blasting operations for the Delaware and Hudson Canal in 1825. The popularity of the product grew and was used in such famous structures as the pedestal for the Statue of Liberty, the Brooklyn, Harlem, East River, He provided the Little League Whitestone bridges, the Thruway, St. Lawrence Seaway and numerous landmark buildings, highways and dams throughout the East.

At one point the Rosendale company fought for survival as Portland Cement was found to be faster setting. However, Mr. Snyder utilized the Portland product with the Rosendale Cement for a superior mix.

Today, part of the old cement mines, approximately 30 acres, has been converted into the ultra modern New York Underground Facilities for storage.

Mr. Snyder served as supervisor for the Town of Rosendale for seven consecutive terms. Field for the community and Funds.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Sarah S. Nienaber of New Jersey and several cousins.

Funeral services will be held at the George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Main Street, Rosendale, Sunday at 2 p.m. The Rev. J. A. MacIntosh, pastor of the Marletown Reformed Church, Stone Ridge, will officiate. Burial will be in Rosendale Plains Cemetery. There will be no calling hours. Memorial contributions are suggested for the Benedictine and Kingston Hospital Building Funds.

Cunard Ship Fire Raging

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The $27 million luxury liner Cunard Ambassador, a fire raging in its interior, wallowed abandoned in the Gulf of Mexico today. Officials feared it might capsize before the fire could be put out.

The blaze, spreading amidships, forced 53 Ambassador crewmen and 40 Coast Guardsmen who fought the fire to abandon ship late Thursday as it lay dead in the water 35 miles off Key West. There were no reports of injuries.

The Ambassador, portions of its gleaming white exterior scorched by intense heat, was listing from water pumped aboard as Coast Guard ships stood by through the night.

"The risk of capsizing is a definite one now and it doesn't look good," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The 480-foot liner was carrying 309 crewmen but no passengers when the fire erupted shortly after dawn on Thursday. Most of the crew were transferred to a passing naval tanker within hours.

The Coast Guard spokesman said the blaze started as the liner rounded the tip of Florida en route from Miami to New Orleans, where it was to pick up passengers for a cruise to Vera Cruz, Mexico. The fire apparently was caused when fuel spewed from a ruptured line and ignited when it hit the hot diesel engine, the spokesman said.

Capt. Robert Howard ordered most of the crew to abandon ship soon afterward. Two hours later they were aboard the naval vessel Tallulah, which then continued on course to Fort Lauderdale.

The 14,160-ton Ambassador, owned by a subsidiary of Cunard Lines Ltd., was leased to Bahama Cruise Lines of Miami. Most of the crew, including Howard, are from England.

Freer Voices 'Disapproval'

PORT EWEN — The Esopus Town Board most certainly does not approve of a recent Ulster County Planning Board report that recommended realignment of the proposed North-South Arterial between Kingston and Port Ewen, according to Supervisor George Freer.

Freer has corrected an error in the Freeman on Thursday which quoted him as saying that the town board voted at its Wednesday meeting to "register its approval of the new plan as a delaying factor."

"I've received more than a dozen phone calls since that appeared," said Freer. "I can assure you that we intend to register our strong DISAPPROVAL of the new plan as a delaying factor."

Bell to Attend MDs Seminar

KERHONKSON — Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.) will attend a legislative seminar to be conducted by the New York State Academy of Family Physicians Sept. 14 at the Grant Hotel in Accord.

The seminar is designed to foster an interchange of ideas between family physicians and state legislators in order to bring better medical care to the people of the state.

The 1974 session of the legislature considered many bills dealing with improved medical care and public health.

Rockefeller Confirmation . . . After Election Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice-presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller — who reportedly has told congressional committees he is worth only $33 million — probably won't be confirmed until after the November elections.

In a special message to Congress Thursday, President Ford said Rockefeller's confirmation was his top legislative priority, but House Democrats said confirmation would be impossible before the elections.

Speaker Carl Albert said he would not push the House Judiciary Committee into hasty action.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Rockefeller filed voluminous statements of his wealth with the House Judiciary and Senate Rules committees as part of their preparation for confirmation hearings.

The Post, quoting unidentified sources, said the $33 million figure might be revised upward soon because some of the former New York governor's assets apparently had been listed at their value when first acquired rather than present market value.

It said Senate Rules chairman Howard Cannon agreed a higher figure may be in the offing.

Estimates of Rockefeller's fortune have ranged as high as $300 million.

The Post reported that Rockefeller had assets totaling $37 million and debts of $4 million.

His principal holdings were listed as $13 million in stocks and $12.5 million in an art collection which totals 1,500 works, mostly in modern art and including several Picassos.

The report said Rockefeller has $8 million in real estate, $2 million in boats and airplanes and $1 million in "furnishings".

House Judiciary chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said the Rockefeller investigation would take at least another month before hearings begin.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif.,

a ranking Judiciary subcommittee chairman, said it would be impossible to complete action on Rockefeller before late November.

Republicans said the delay was politically motivated to prevent Rockefeller from campaigning for GOP candidates. Rockefeller has already postponed a number of political speeches to avoid possible conflict with his confirmation.

Ford told Congress he would assist it "in all appropriate ways" in speeding the nomination. He added he was "sure there will be no inordinate delay in moving the nomination."

But Albert backed off an earlier statement saying he hoped to complete proceedings before the mid-October recess.

"I personally have no doubts about the governor," Albert said. "But I'm not going to push them (the Judiciary Committee) one way or another against their better judgment."

House GOP leader John Rhodes said a delay past election day would be "unconscionable."

"We don't dare go home for elections without getting this done," said Rep. Robert McClellan, second ranking Republican on Judiciary.

Senate leaders said action there should be completed by mid-October, with Rules Committee hearings opening Sept. 23.

Death Sentence for Chenault

ATLANTA (UPI) — A superior court jury sentenced Marcus Chenault to death by electrocution Thursday for killing Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. and a church deacon.

Chenault, 23, a former Ohio State University student, clownishly acted out his own execution as his court-appointed attorney, Randy Bacote, argued against the death penalty.

The jury took about three hours to find Chenault guilty on two counts of murder, one of aggravated assault and two of carrying concealed weapons, and to sentence him to death.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Wayne Chenault Sr., Dayton, Ohio, wept silently as the sentence was read in the crowded courtroom. Their son was being electrocuted during Bacote's argument. Seconds later, he smiled, flashed a V-for-victory sign and sat up.

Chenault then stood before Fulton County Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson and District Attorney Lewis Slaton then called for his execution, saying, "This society cannot afford this defendant. Send him to prison for what happened, and he'd find a weapon. Ladies and gentlemen, he has tasted blood and he'll kill again."

Chenault received a 10-year sentence for assault and 12 months each on the weapons charges for the attack at Ebenezer Baptist Church during a Sunday morning service June 30 which killed Mrs. King and deacon Edward Boykin.

His attorneys, who admitted he fired the shots that killed Mrs. King and Boykin, claimed he was insane at the time.

Dem Opposition Mounts on Nixon Expenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bit-ter, at times angry, Democratic opposition is building in Congress to an $850,000 request to pay for former President Richard M. Nixon's transition to private life.

"I don't think the country will stand for it," declared Rep. George Shipley, D-Ill.

"As one who has been pardoned from crimes, he is of less worth to the world than one who left in good grace," said Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio.

"In my view, fairness to the American people requires that we appropriate none of it," said Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif.

"Now that Mr. Nixon has been pardoned for the crimes he committed against the American people, there's no reason why they should be compelled to continue to support him in luxury."

Arthur Sampson, head of the General Services Administration which would administer the Nixon funds, underwent critical day-long questioning Thursday before a House appropriations subcommittee.

House members even began to express anger over the protection of former presidents' families.

The GSA is seeking $400,000 under the Former Presidents Act and $450,000 in transitional expenses. Democrats said the amount sought to provide Nixon with a staff, offices, and assistance in screening his presidential papers were excessive, and twice what was provided the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

But Rep. Howard Robison, R-N.Y., among other Republicans, said, "Nixon is entitled to whatever he needs. It is our responsibility not to classify former presidents as good ones or bad ones but to make the transition as smoothly as possible."

Sampson received critical questioning Wednesday from a Senate appropriations subcommittee chaired by Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., who said the GSA had been given a "snow job" by Nixon's aides.

The money would be provided under two separate laws, an annual fund made available for all former presidents — includ-

Gloomy Inflation Predictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of President Ford's top economic advisors say consumers won't get any significant relief from the nation's soaring inflation rate this year.

The gloomy predictions came from departing presidential economic counselor Kenneth Rish and Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economics Advisors.

Despite months of anti-inflation effort, including record high interest rates most of this year, these advisors say the earliest any real progress can be made is next year.

These views mark a major retreat from Nixon administration predictions that the rate of inflation, now about 11 per cent, would decline to 7 per cent by the end of this year.

This target was revised upward a month ago to 8 per cent.

Rush, who was confirmed by the Senate on Thursday as ambassador to France, indicated in an interview that the inflation rate may still be above 10 per cent when 1974 draws to a close.

In other economic developments on Thursday:

—Senate Democrats voted to send President Ford several economic policy proposals for consideration at the upcoming economic summit meeting.

—Leaders of the nation's housing industry attending an economic minisummit in Atlanta made a bid to exempt their industry from anti-inflationary tight money policies.

—The Federal Power Commission staff recommended a single nationwide price on certain natural gas, a move virtually certain to increase gas prices.

—The wholesale price index for August was released showing a 3.9 per cent leap, an indication that inflation may be getting worse.

—Ford Motor Co. announced a 7.4 per cent price hike on its 1975 model cars.

Greenspan told labor leaders meeting at the White House on Wednesday that "in the im-

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices turned lower at the opening in fairly active trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has given up more than 36 points this week, slipped 0.78 to 646.96. Of the 516 issues traded, declines topped advances, 245 to 163. Volume totaled around 550,000 shares.

The jump in wholesale prices in August was expected to act as a further depressant on the market. The report from the Labor Department was responsible for a good part of the drop of almost 13 points in the Dow in Thursday's session, sending the blue chip indicator to a four-year low at 641.74.

The soaring prices add further fuel to inflation, a factor that has been responsible for much of the gloom on Wall Street in recent months.

Plans Revealed for Ulster Recreation Center

By CARL GRAHAM

TOWN OF ULSTER

The Ulster Town Board Thursday night heard plans for a 19-acre recreational center for the town.

Steve Conti, chairman of the Recreation Commission, estimated total cost at $210,000. The town eligible for matching state aid under the Outdoor Recreational Bond Act, from the town's $105,000 share of the cost. Supervisor Carmine Sabino said that 10½ acres of the tract have already been pledged to the town by the owners, KCS Realty, with the remaining 8½ acres to be delivered within five years.

The land, located east of the intersection of Orlando Street and Buckley Street near the Rondout Creek, will be developed by the town. The town hopes to get the project under way in the spring of 1975 and completed by late fall. He estimated the value of the land at $60,000, which would mean the town would only have to furnish $45,000 toward its half of the cost. Any use of town equipment such as graders or trucks would also be credited toward the town share.

"Maybe if we get sewers for them their wells would not be contaminated from septic tanks," he said. Councilman Anthony Cicoria, chairman of the Water Committee, said he was against doing anything at all to help the city. Sabino said there had been numerous complaints about garbage falling off city trucks using Cityview Terrace and suggested it could be closed to city trucks.

Sabino said the proposed flood control project in the Kingston Plaza area would benefit the city's side of the creek but would leave the town's side unprotected. The board proclaimed Sept. 17 as Citizenship Day. Councilman Edward Crosby, principal of Lake Katrine School, said the school would observe the day with appropriate ceremonies. "As a naturalized citizen I appreciate the opportunity to participate in all activities," Sabino said. "But many of those who are born here do not seem to appreciate the things they have. They take them for granted."

Nuclear 'Attack' Is Proposed

By WADE BURKHART

LLOYD

The Lloyd Town board was presented with a lengthy and detailed suggested plan of action against the siting of a nuclear power plant in the Town of Lloyd, a plan prepared by the Concerned Citizens of Highland (CCOH).

Last month the town board asked its power plant advisory committee to study and report on ways in which plant siting could be opposed. The committee has been in adjournment for the summer, and has not yet met on the town board's request, according to its chairman, John Schlosser.

The CCOH strongly opposes the idea of a power plant in Lloyd. Their battle plan against it contained 14 points. Included in the plan of action are the writing of letters to everybody from President Ford down; a letter of the State Atomic and Space Development Authority asking them to stop their Lloyd studies; constant contact with the press; getting business and civic groups to pass resolutions against the plant; and getting other governmental bodies opposed to the plant to help the fight with money; engaging legal specialists for a court fight; warning all power companies in the state that to locate in Lloyd meant a long, hard battle; and the contacting for aid of national consumers and environmental organizations.

The plan was presented to the town board in a letter read at the meeting by CCOH spokesman Harry Brandt.

In other action, Phillip J. Magnarella, a Democrat opposing incumbent Republican Assemblyman Emeel Betros this year, appeared before the board to pledge his aid in getting a bill passed by the legislature and signed by the governor to aid the town in its upper Brescia Boulevard situation.

Lines from the Highland Sewer District were laid to upper Brescia Boulevard a few years ago, and are now in use. The difficulty is that the area is outside the sewer district, and the town has no way of legally collecting revenues for the sewer use.

A betros-sponsored bill got to have to pick up more money from the meters," said supervisor Jon Decker. "We've vetoes it. The bill would have allowed the town to annex the existing sewer lines into the district. Magnarella said the betros bill was so defective Wilson was forced to veto it. The specifications are needed as sewer district to upper Reservoir Road, and the water district to River Road. Both district extensions will be sent to Albany for state approval.

The east side of Vineyard Avenue, in Highland, is the first section which will get new sidewalks. If the owners do not put in new sidewalks according to town specifications, the town can do the work and put it on the tax bills. Lester reported that the property owners in the area are "enthusiastic" about the program, and ready to get started.

Decker reported that, at a special meeting last month, the board voted a six month moratorium on the issuance of permits for commercial dumping in the town landfill. The moratorium is to allow the landfill to be studied, with an eye to making the operation more efficient, Decker said.

The board set a special meeting for Monday night at 8 p.m. to finish work on sidewalk specifications, and adopt them.

The town's water budget picture is not bright for this year, according to Councilman Albert Lester, and the rates may be increased. "We're going to have to pick up more money from the meters," said supervisor Jon Decker. "We've done engineering studies and Sabino said he had complained to national, state and county legislators about the failure of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department to respond when called by town residents. He read a letter from Clifford W. Snyder, chairman of the County Legislature's Sheriff's

Cohen In Campaign Jam

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.

(AP)—Congressional candidate Sanford Cohen has been ordered to open his mail before postal officials.

The Free Libertarian Party candidate, who drew attention several months ago by posing nude for campaign posters, had promised prospective campaign contributors that 20 per cent of all donations would be returned in the form of prize money following a drawing.

But a federal court judge in New York City has temporarily enjoined Cohen's campaign from using the mails to attract funds through the promotion. The campaign effort violates a 102-year-old federal law prohibiting the use of mails to promote or conduct a lottery, U.S. Postal officials contend.

He is attempting to unseat incumbent Republican Hamilton Fish Jr. of Millbrook.

"Someone, somewhere is putting pressure on these law-enforcement agencies to act," Cohen said after the injunction was issued Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Henry F. Werker.

Cohen said he had raised several hundred dollars through the mail promotion.

Gabell's Oath as Deputy Sheriff Termed 'Error'

KINGSTON notary public before whom the oath was sworn on July 29, the designation of Gabell as a deputy sheriff on the oath is an error, just as the payroll entry was an error.

"It was my mistake," Mrs. Olsen said, explaining again that Gabell was supposed to be listed as a janitor.

According to Sheriff William B. Martin's personal secretary Myrtle Olsen, who is also the Jerome Gabell, the fugitive from justice who appeared on the Ulster County Jail payroll during August as a deputy sheriff, also took a sworn oath of office as deputy sheriff which was filed at the Ulster County Clerk's office Aug. 9.

Gabell, who is currently wanted as a fugitive from justice in the states of Florida and New Jersey, disappeared during the last week of August following the arrival of a governor's warrant from New Jersey for his extradition. Law enforcement authorities are still seeking him. He was first hired July 29, according to payroll records which listed him as a deputy sheriff. That, Sheriff Martin immediately insisted, was an error. Martin later explained that Gabell was a janitor-undercover man.

Gabell remained on the payroll, with his designation changed to janitor after the Freeman first revealed his hiring, until Aug. 21—the day the story was first published.

Mrs. Olsen said she tried to get the errors on the oath and the payroll corrected the same day she sent both documents out.

According to Mrs. Olsen, Sheriff Martin was not aware of the errors.

"The Sheriff knew nothing about it. I made the errors and I tried to clear it up," she said, later released on bail as stolen property and in Florida governor's warrants were slow in coming.

Gabell was first arrested in Ulster County June 6 as a fugitive from justice in New Jersey, and was later arrested June 10 as a fugitive from justice in Florida. He spent several days in jail and was later released on bail as stolen property and in Florida governor's warrants were slow in coming.

Martin has credited Gabell with preventing the escape of a convicted murderer and has said that he knew of nothing illegal in the hiring of Gabell as a janitor.

Wilson Opposes Offshore Oil Drilling

OLD WESTBURY, N.Y. — (AP) — Gov. Malcolm Wilson said Thursday that he would strongly oppose offshore oil drilling without proof that the state's coastal areas would be safeguarded.

"There are no assurances to date that the major oil companies could extract offshore oil or gas without irreparable damage to the marine environment and the coastal wetlands," Wilson said.

The governor's remarks were in a statement issued at a reception here in honor of the Nassau County members of the state's congressional delegation.

Wilson said he would "strongly oppose any move by the U.S. Department of the Interior to grant leases for oil and gas drilling off New York's coast until and unless it can be proved to our satisfaction that drilling in Atlantic waters will in no way threaten our coastal areas."

The governor said that Long Island beaches stretch 125 miles from New York City to Montauk Point and described them as among the most beautiful and famous in the world.

"These priceless assets plus the numerous beaches on Staten Island and along Long Island Sound form the basis of a huge recreational, hotel, tourist and allied services industry supporting many, many thousands of jobs," Wilson said.

He said the Federal Council of Environmental Quality, in a report last April, admitted there were large gaps in knowledge dealing with the biological effects of oil spills on the marine environment.

The governor said that the report also showed a lack of data on the effects of spills and discharges on commercial fisheries and pointed out that the oil industry has on experience in stormy waters such as the Atlantic.

"We must weigh the environmental risks of offshore development against the benefits of needed resources. Our precious Long Island Sound and other beaches could be seriously and even mortally wounded.

"A spill reaching the shores would impact on some of the nation's most intensively used recreational areas and multi-million-dollar shellfish resources," Wilson said.

Burglars Surrender, Hostages Released

NEW YORK (AP) — Four would-be burglars surrendered to police early today and released two hostages they had taken at gunpoint when they broke into a Bronx home.

A cheer went up from a crowd gathered in front of 937 E. 226th Street shortly after 4 a.m. when the two hostages, Steve Adonetto, 73, and Teddy Davio, 37, emerged grinning and sweating from the two-story brick building at 937 E. 226th Street.

"I feel fine. I'm okay," said Adonetto.

Meanwhile, a sawed-off shotgun was taken from the last of the four gunmen to surrender, and he was taken to the Laconia Avenue police station.

Police said the incident began around 11:30 p.m. Thursday night, when the three of the men broke into the building to burglarize Davio's upstairs rear apartment.

They took Davio as a hostage, then dragged Adonetto upstairs from his apartment. Meanwhile, the police received a telephoned report of the burglary.

When they arrived, the two men were taken hostage and a lookout was posted downstairs.

While heavily armed police cordoned off the building in the Williamsbridge section, a special police hostage negotiating team established telephone contact with the gunmen.

One of the men talked to his father. He was one of the two gunmen who surrendered first around 1 a.m. today. They were both immediately taken to the Laconia Avenue station.

The parents of one of the remaining men also talked over the telephone. Soon after, police got into the basement of the building and found the lookout, who surrendered. The negotiating team kept him at the scene to talk to the last gunman.

Moments later, Adonetto yelled from inside the building, apparently trying to reach one of the three men who had given up.

"Paul, this is Steve," he said. "This guy wants to be out and he wants to be safe."

One high police official at the scene said the last gunman was wavering in his telephone conversations with the negotiating team.

First he wanted immunity from prosecution, then he wanted a guarantee that he would not be hurt, said the official.

Finally, just before he surrendered, the man wanted to know how heavy the charges against him would be, said the official.

During the negotiations residents of the predominantly black neighborhood, most of them in nightclothes, gathered on 226th Street.

Inmates Building Clinic Playroom

ELLENVILLE — The Southern Ulster Mental Health Clinic in Ellenville, according to a joint announcement by officials of both the clinic and the prison.

As part of the prison's Rehabilitation Program, inmates who have learned such construction skills as carpentry, electrical work and plumbing will have a chance to use these skills, according to the announcement.

The work will be done under the supervision of Al Tefft, maintenance supervisor of the prison. The room, presently a storeroom, is to be used in the treatment of children with psychological problems.

In the joint statement, Dr. Martin Cowan, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Southern Ulster Mental Health Clinic and Counseling Service, and Jerome Patterson, superintendent of the prison at Napanoch, stated, "This project is typical of the new thrust of the Department of Correctional Facilities, whereby residents of the correctional facility are trained in specialized skills which are then applied to non-profit community projects."

"Future rehabilitation efforts of this nature are planned by the correctional facility."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 13, 1974

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The dramatic events can now be told, which led to the pardoning of Richard Nixon.

The former President didn't participate in the conversations at San Clemente but let his loyal aide Ronald Ziegler do the talking for him. Not until the parleying had been completed did a taut, troubled Nixon put in an appearance to murmur his thanks. He didn't even mention the pardon. Nor did he ask about the fate of his former aides who face trial on September 30 for the alleged crimes that he no longer can be prosecuted for.

In an earlier column, we detailed the reasons that President Ford granted his predecessor a blanket pardon.

The overriding reason, according to our White House sources, was to save Nixon from a possible emotional collapse.

But the President's lawyers, Philip Buchen and Benton Becker, wanted a "contrition statement" from Nixon as part of the pardon agreement.

They were concerned that he might aggravate the Watergate controversy by proclaiming his innocence once it was no longer possible for the courts to establish his guilt. As one White House source put it bluntly: "We wanted to avoid the Ted Agnew bull — of protesting his innocence all over the country."

The question of contrition was brought up delicately with Nixon's crack criminal attorney, Herbert "Jack" Miller. They didn't want to make it a condition of the pardon, so they merely suggested that a cleansing statement from Nixon would be helpful.

On September 5, Becker and Miller flew out to San Clemente for the final negotiations. White House aides say President Ford's parting instructions to Becker were: (1) he should not promise Nixon a pardon but should inform him only that a pardon was possible; and (2) Becker should stress that the Watergate case was an "albatross" which Ford wanted to remove from around his neck so he could concentrate on solving other problems.

The two lawyers arrived at San Clemente at 11 p.m., California time, and immediately went into a three-hour huddle with Ronald Ziegler. After the discussions broke up at 2 a.m., Becker and Miller drank a couple of beers and then retired to guest rooms in the San Clemente compound.

Becker was up at 5:30 a.m. to telephone a progress report to Buchen at the White House. Later the talks resumed in Ziegler's office. Frequently, Ziegler and Miller would slip out of the room for whispered consultations, perhaps with the President. At one point, Becker showed Miller an advance draft of the pardon statement that the President might issue.

An understanding ultimately was reached that a pardon, if the President agreed to it, would be followed by a statement of contrition from San Clemente. The contents, if not the exact language, of the statement were carefully worked out.

The details were also finalized for giving Nixon eventual custody of his presidential tapes and documents, with safeguards to assure that they would be available to the courts.

All the agreements were completed before President Ford's weary emissary sat down with Nixon himself. Before Becker and Miller were ushered into Nixon's office, they were cautioned to keep the meeting informal.

The found Nixon mentally alert but terribly tired and distraught. Ziegler stood at the door while the others sat and talked.

"Thank you for being fair," Nixon murmured to the 36-year-old Becker. "You are a fine young man."

He was pleased with the agreement to give him custody of his presidential papers, but he made no mention of the pardon or the plight of his former aides.

In a few minutes, it was over. History had been made.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Whispers have reached us that President Ford, while he was Vice President, spent a weekend at Hawaii's fashionable Maunakea Beach Hotel last May at the expense of U.S. Steel's top man in Washington, William G. Whyte. It is true that Whyte paid the bill, which ran over $1,000, because some of his charges had been added to Ford's bill, but we have established that Ford subsequently sent Whyte a check for about $350 once his correct share of the bill had been calculated. . . . The Greeks are deadly serious about closing their bases to NATO. In the past, the United States routinely flew F5 fighters, purchased by the shah of Iran, to the air base outside Athens on the way to Iran. But the Greek government has now secretly notified Washington that such landings no longer will be permitted. Result: the Pentagon is preparing to crate the fighters and fly them in C5 cargo planes to the shah. . . .

The defense ministers of several European nations will come to the United States this fall to inspect the small YF-16 and YF-17 fighter planes. At stake is several billion dollars worth of business, which could go to the United States or France. . . . Belgian officials have notified the French, according to intelligence reports, that they would look more favorably upon France's Mirage F1 fighters if Paris would cease its stubborn ways and participate more fully in the NATO logistics system.

Resistance to Snooping

The results of a new Harris Survey poll offer consoling evidence that most Americans feel a deeply rooted aversion for government snooping by wire-taps or other electronic means. This indicates a widespread understanding that individual privacy is one of our most important civil liberties. That is a healthy sign at a time when technology is providing more and more sophisticated means of poking into people's private lives.

A resounding 80 per cent of those questioned asserted their right "not to be spied on by any kind of electronic surveillance, except with a court order." Eighty-one per cent felt there is a right "not to have one's phone conversations tapped for any reason"—again, "except with a court order." This feeling that the courts must authorize any electronic surveillance at all extends also to the task of gathering evidence "against citizens suspected of criminal activity." Even under those circumstances, said 68 per cent of those surveyed, a specific court order should be required before the government at any level can conduct wire-taps or other snooping by electronic means.

Majorities ranging from 56 to 80 per cent also balked at establishment of a central government personal data file, at allowing police searches of a home without a warrant, and at telephone company disclosure of records of long distance calls except by court order. All this gives welcome assurance that Americans are aware of and resist the insidious dangers of government invasion of privacy.

As Electric Bills Rise

All over the country, consumers have been getting periodic shocks from rising electric bills. These jolts have been compounded by utilities executives' variations on the gloomy theme that further increases are to be expected. In short, the cost of electricity is going up and no ceiling is in sight.

Recently the president of a large utilities company in the Southwest stated the case this way: "If the economic situation of the United States and the costs of producing energy for our customers continue as they are at present, the next 10 years of challenges necessarily will mean periodic rate increases." It is unrealistic to suppose that the costs of producing energy—or the size of monthly electric bills—will go anywhere but up.

By coincidence, on the same day the above quotation appeared in the news there was an item about how a Virginia couple are dealing with the high cost of electricity: they told the local power company to discontinue service. This requires certain adjustments in their life style. No more air conditioning, of course; they'll revert to the older method of opening the windows and hoping for a breeze. They'll read by the light of a kerosene lamp—and presumably read rather more than in the past, since there'll be no power for television. Food will be cooled by plastic bags of ice in the refrigerator.

This is not a course of action to be recommended for everyone. That Virginia couple's response does, however, underscore the valid point that one way to reduce electric bills is to use less electricity. Lots of appliances are not necessities, but luxuries. A touch of austerity might not be a bad thing—and besides, if the idea caught on it would do wonders for energy conservation.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — By succumbing to emotion and not even waiting for the completion of a secret study on the effects of pardoning Richard M. Nixon, President Ford has raised serious questions of his performance in time of crisis.

At the moment Sunday morning when Mr. Ford bloodied his young presidency by issuing the pardon, selected lawyers on and off the government payroll were quietly preparing a study he had requested on legal and political ramifications of a Nixon pardon.

Preliminary reports of that study submitted to White House counsel Philip Buchen suggested it was much too soon for any possible pardon. That view was shared by Buchen himself as well as other aides President Ford brought into the White House. "I don't know one Ford man, either on his staff or in his kitchen cabinet, who wanted an immediate pardon," a Ford insider told us.

Gen. Alexander Haig, the chief of staff inherited from Nixon, was viewed by these Ford insiders as advocating a quick pardon. But not even the mighty Haig is believed influential enough to have swayed the President from the resolve expressed at his Aug. 28 press conference to await action by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski before considering a pardon for Nixon.

What changed the President's mind? The answer is put identically by several Ford advisors: "Somebody got to Ford." Specifically, that "somebody" told the President that Nixon was in a precarious condition emotionally and physically and could not survive under threats of prosecution.

This certainly was not the message brought back from San Clemente by Benton Becker, the young Washington lawyer sent there by Mr. Ford to negotiate with Nixon. Becker encountered a composed Nixon, wholly in command of himself, and so reported to the White House.

Accordingly, the "somebody" was a person in far more intimate contact with the real Nixon at San Clemente. In the opinion of one informed Ford advisor, it was Julie Nixon Eisenhower, the former President's engagingly bright daughter who has always been a favorite of Mr. Ford's.

Whoever the San Clemente caller, Mr. Ford's stunning reversal is seen by his closest advisors as dictated not by politics but by personal compassion. Here, then, is no repeat of the infamous Saturday night massacre. Most, private criticism of the President within his own party goes not to motives but to judgment.

The cost of the bad judgment is running perilously high. By breaking his promises, Mr. Ford has shredded his own credibility and put all Republican candidates on the Watergate spot, less than two months before election. His presidency, his relations with Congress and Republican campaign prospects all have been damaged.

Republicans are consequently asking whether this was a single abysmal aberration or a clue of congenital behavior in time of crisis. They desperately hope the former is the case because of the unwholesome parallel in this crisis with President Nixon, who never consulted his party.

Only Haig, Buchen and counselor Robert Hartmann were kept fully informed about the pardon. Mr. Ford took no advance soundings of congressional reaction. A longtime Ford intimate, House minority leader John Rhodes (one of the few Republicans giving the pardon his private approval), was informed Sunday noon at the ninth tee at Burning Tree following the public announcement. Nor is there any sign that another wise old Ford crony, Melvin R. Laird, was consulted in advance. The cabinet — including still another Ford crony, Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton — was ignored.

Republicans are hoping that, though the euphoria of Mr. Ford's first month is gone forever, the pardon will not prove to be a running open sore like Watergate (and, for the matter, Chappaquiddick). What really nags at them is whether last week's trauma is a preview of President Ford under extreme stress — whether somebody as persuasive as Julie Eisenhower can deflect him from a sensible, operational strategy by a private appeal outside normal political channels.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Hairy Harry Busted a Spy Ring

There are a few humorless critics at conventions of war veterans who maintain that Hairy Harry tried to lose the war. This is a canard which should be corrected because it is no longer a matter of national security.

Hairy and I worked on a magazine. Our desks were back to back. He was a big-bellied blond with a wheat field of hair and a mustache which curved up outside his cheeks. Hairy Harry was noted for two things: he could do the Times' crossword puzzle down to the final id, and he could laugh like crazy.

When he threw his head back to roar at something funny, the sound bent windows and caused shades to snap to the top of their rollers. Sadly, Hairy Harry would laugh at anything.

We got along. He reminded me of Santa in summer. In the early days of World War II, he resigned and enlisted in General William Donovan's Office of Strategic Services, a title which no one could say so they called it OSS.

The OSS was so secret that the government denied it existed. Donovan was looking for intellect, bravery and patriotism in equal parts. He took Hairy Harry in, perhaps after a demonstration that Hairy could do the Times' puzzle in a half-hour.

The secret men of the secret OSS had a secret cavern in Washington where they studied secrets. They had those little pocket pens with the curate tips long before James Bond put a fogger in his Daimler talisman.

Hairy Harry was entranced. He went shrieking mad about those little German postage stamps which, under a magnifying glass, revealed a ball-bearing plant in Dortmund. When they took all his clothes and his effects and gave Hairy Harry a new identity, he loved it.

He had new clothes, a new name, an address in a city and neighborhood he had never seen but could describe right down to the graffiti on the fences. He had new I.D. cards, memberships in country clubs and photos of spurious relatives.

The important thing, I suspect, is never to tilt a nut. Some of you, an instructor said, will be dropped behind enemy lines. All of you speak German flawlessly. You will, above all, remain unobtrusive. Rent a cheap room. Do not look for work in a defense plant. Find a job in a quiet bakery or grocery store.

"Now this is the important part. At some time, an alert German will become suspicious of you. While you are sending us information about prime bombing targets, you must detect this man before he reports you to Himmler's S.S. Watch for him."

"When it is safe, spy on him. Observe his daily habits. Before he can close in on you, get him first. Clip words from German newspapers which will convince the S.S. that he is an anti-Nazi. If you can send an anonymous letter which pinpoints three checkable facts, the Nazis will believe the fourth one."

"For example," the instructor said, "your anonymous note may recite three innocuous habits which can be made to look sinister. He leaves his house furtively at 8 a.m. He pulls a window shade down halfway on certain mornings. Radio reception in his neighborhood is poor because of a crackling noise. Once a week, he wears a caranation from his garden and carries a briefcase."

"If the S.S. can check these facts, they will believe your fourth premise, which is that he is in the pay of Germany's enemies. In sum, you get him before he gets you."

Hairy Harry and his OSS team drew a week's vacation. "We will meet a week from Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the lobby of a hotel near the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Buy a newspaper and sit behind it. At 7:20, a man with a scar across his nose will approach the cigar counter and ask for a panatella. He will snip the end twice. Then, as he turns toward the revolving door, you will follow him one by one."

Hairy Harry loved it. And yet he had to prove a point. So he clipped words from a newspaper and sent an anonymous note to the chief of police.

"The Battleship Iowa is near completion at the Philadelphia yards. Six men will be in the lobby of a downtown hotel reading at 7 p.m. Tuesday. All are highly trained Nazi saboteurs. They will wait for a man to order a panatella cigar, snip the end off twice, and will follow him out one by one to set up plans to blow up the Iowa."

It was, Hairy thought, a good field test. The night of the meeting, Harry sat reading in the lobby. He saw ferocious faces behind every palm frond. As the man clipped the cigar twice, the cops closed in. Everybody went to the can. Nobody had a correct name or address.

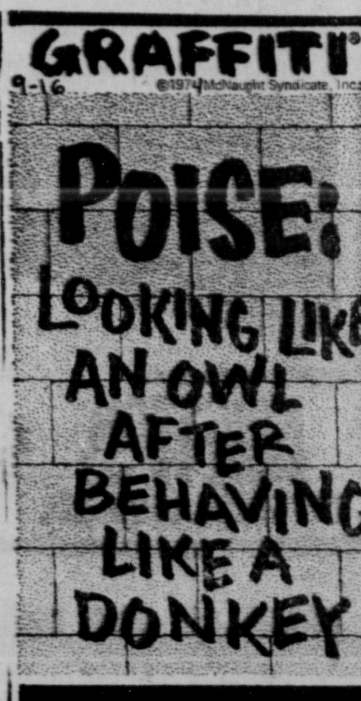

This was the biggest spy bust of the war. The OSS could hardly afford to identify them as secret agents. After a week, J. Edgar Hoover pulled wires and sprung them. Hairy Harry laughed and laughed. The thing worked. Donovan wanted to kill him. The vets still say Harry tried to lose the war. Nonsense. He wasn't that smart. . . .

Rose Roberti
— Owner —
Lou's Boat Basin

A part time vacation home in the country turned into a business and new way of life for Rose. She and husband Lou were living in the Bronx and purchased some property along Rondout Creek in Eddyville. In 1932 while they were on vacation people asked if they could dock their boats at a small float they had put out for their own use. This request led to boat repairs and to purchase boats. They talked it over and made the decision—pull up roots, move and start a boat business. Lou a master furniture repair and refinisher set forth on a new challenge and learned about motors and boats from stem to stern and turned Lou's Boat Basin into the largest privately owned basin around with dockage for 40 boats. Rose helped with the buying, selling, was bookkeeper and managed to raise three fine sons. After her husband's death a few years ago she continued the business offering Evinrude, Glasspar, Larson, Monark and MFG boats and motors, along with boating accessories and factory trained mechanics. Louis, one of her six grandchildren, has just completed the Evinrude Training Center course for outboard motor repairs. For the best in boating... go to Lou's Boat Basin, Route 213 Eddyville.

Yankees: A Team of Rejects

BALTIMORE (AP)—Pitcher Mike Wallace calls the New York Yankees a team of rejects who had to learn cohesion, but Manager Bill Virdon's act of self sacrifice proves they now have togetherness.

After Roy White snapped the strap on his athletic supporter while running out an eighth inning single Thursday night, Virdon retreated to the locker room and yielded his own to New York's designated hitter.

Wearing the designated supporter, White scored the first run of the three-run rally which gave the Yanks a 3-0 victory and added to their slender lead in the American League's Eastern Division.

"We just got a little more involved," Virdon said in describing the locker room caper which explained the reason for White's sudden dash off the field.

Winning for the 22nd time in their last 29 games, the Yanks remained 2½ games ahead of Boston which moved a half game in front of the Orioles by beating Cleveland 3-2.

Loser Jim Palmer, 6-12, struck out Elliott Maddox after White returned. But Bobby Murcer beat out an infield tap per and White continued to third on a throwing error by first baseman Bob Oliver.

Graig Nettles, Chris Chambliss and Lou Piniella followed with run-scoring hits to finish Palmer, who took a four-hitter into the eighth.

Wallace, with a 5-0 record after 20 relief appearances, notched victory No. 6 as a surprise starter in a pivotal game.

"I wanted to pitch a left hander to keep as much speed out of the line-up as I could," Virdon said. The move kept Baltimore speedsters Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins, who bat left-handed, on the bench.

Wallace pitched out of trouble while issuing five walks in the first three innings, and had given up only three hits when he was replaced by Dick Tidrow with two on and two out in the eighth.

At Philadelphia last season, Wallace made three starts in the National League. With the Yanks, he hadn't pitched more than 3 2-3 innings in any relief stint.

Virdon said he had hoped that Wallace would last six innings, and there was no bullpen action despite the early inning walks.

"He was throwing good," Virdon said, "and I thought he'd be all right when he got his feet on the ground."

Tidrow, bypassed as the starter in favor of Wallace, retired Tommy Davis to end the eighth inning threat and allowed one more hit in the ninth.

Noting that relief ace Sparky Lyle wasn't to be used following a 6 2-3 inning stint in Wednesday's 17-inning first game, Wallace said: "We had to go get them with what we had. With me in there, it wasn't exactly long liners."

Speaking of the deals which brought many new players to the Yanks this year, Wallace said: "This is a strange team, a team of rejects. Early in the season we had no cohesion, but now we've come together like a jigsaw puzzle."

Before taking two of three from the Orioles, the Yanks beat the Red two in a row at Boston. In the five road games, New York pitchers have allowed seven earned runs in 56 innings, a sparkling 1.13 ERA.

Virdon said he didn't plan to start Wallace against Baltimore when the Orioles visit New York for a three-game series next week, but he didn't rule out the possibility of another start elsewhere.

With only 18 games remaining, Virdon claimed he didn't feel any differently with a 2½ game lead than when the Yanks were in a first-place tie.

But then he conceded, while referring to the two-game edge over Boston in the loss column: "We're in a position where we have to win one less than they do."

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, who have lost only four of their last 16, was looking for another winning streak like the recent 10 straight which propelled them back into the race.

"This would be a nice time to put another eight or nine together," he said. "Let's see, we could win four here, three in New York and two in Boston."

Elsewhere in the AL, the Oakland A's edged the Minnesota Twins 2-1, the Texas Rangers and Chicago White Sox played to a 2-2 tie in a rain-shortened contest and the Detroit Tigers outsluged the Milwaukee Brewers 9-7 in 10 innings. California and Kansas City were not scheduled.

Red Sox 3, Indians 2

The Red Sox scored the winning run in the eighth on Carl Yastrzemski's double off Jim Perry, a sacrifice and Dick McAuliffe's sacrifice fly off Tom Buskey.

A's 2, Twins 1

Sal Bando's sacrifice fly delivered Bill North in the eighth inning with the tie-breaking run.

Oakland's Ken Holtzman pitched scoreless ball after allowing Minnesota a run in the first on Larry Hise's triple and Bobby Darwin's single.

Rangers 2, White Sox 2

Ken Henderson's 18th home run gave Chicago a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning moments before a heavy downpour halted the game.

Tigers 9, Brewers 7

Tom Veryzer belted his first major league homer with a man aboard in the 10th inning and relief ace John Hiller notched a record-breaking 17th victory for the Tigers. Veryzer connected off Tom Murphy.

Hiller, 17-10, broke the American League record of 16 victories by a reliever, set by Boston's Dick Radatz in 1964. Pittsburgh's Elroy Face holds the major league mark with 18 in 1959.

LET ME OUT — Yanks' Bobby Murcer tries to pull himself out from under Brooks Robinson after sliding into third on a Craig Nettles single to right in eighth inning of Thursday night's game. Murcer beat the throw from right fielder Enos Cabell and Robinson didn't like the call. Umpire Ron Luciano promptly let him know who was boss. Yanks won, 3-0. (UPI)

Robby Wasn't In Angels' Plans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It is kind of strange. Kind of funny, that the first team I'll see is Baltimore. I kind of like that," says Frank Robinson.

The only man ever to win Most Valuable Player honors in both leagues, Robinson left the California Angels Thursday and prepared to join Cleveland in Baltimore tonight as the Indians open a series with the Orioles — the team Robinson led to a World Series title only four seasons ago.

The 39-year-old Robinson, a designated hitter with California, was sold by the Angels to the Indians for the $20,000 waiver price.

Robinson joined the Angels before the 1973 season and planned to finish his playing career with California after 10 years at Cincinnati, six with Baltimore and one season with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Angels, last in the American League West, started a youth movement, so Robinson, fourth on the all-time home run list with 572, earning $172,000 a year and planning to play only one more season, became available.

"I wouldn't basically say the Angels were short with me, but in another way they were," said Robinson, who had approval over any deal.

"When I came to the Angels I talked with (General Manager) Harry Dalton and told him I wanted to play two or three more years and I didn't want to bounce around any more. He didn't give me any definite answer but I thought we had a type of gentleman's agreement."

"Recently I was told I was not in their plans for next year," added Robinson. "So many to be a prime candidate you know when someone tells you that . . ."

"I figured, with Cleveland playing me, that it would be the best at this time to take the deal and get out of here."

The Indians are trying to overtake Boston, Baltimore and New York in the American League East and Robinson said one of his requirements in approving a deal was that he join a pennant contender that would allow him to play next season.

"Which will be my last," Robinson, hitting .251 with 20 homers and 63 runs batted in, said. "I'm happy to be joining a club in the thick of a pennant race. I hope I can help them win. I think I can contribute. Whether it's enough to put them on top, I don't know, but I hope so."

Robinson, considered by many to be a prime candidate to become baseball's first black manager, joins his fifth major league team and there was immediate speculation that he might eventually become the pilot of the Indians.

But Indian General Manager Phil Seghi said that talk about Robinson becoming the Tribe's next manager is "strictly speculation."

Robinson ranks No. 4 on the all-time home run list with 572 home runs, behind Hank Aaron, Babe Ruth and Willie Mays. He was hitting .251 this season with 20 home runs and 63 runs batted in.

Robinson started his major league career at Cincinnati and was the MVP in the National League in 1961. He became the only man to ever win the same honor in the other league when he was picked MVP in the AL in 1966 at Baltimore.

LA Saves Marshall for Reds

By United Press International

It was easy to tell the Los Angeles Dodgers were getting ready for a big series.

They even gave Mike Marshall a day off.

The Dodgers and the Cincinnati Red opened a three-game series—the final three games between the two teams this season—in Los Angeles tonight and the two teams don't have to be told how important they are.

Cincinnati swept a double-header from Atlanta 9-6 and 6-2 Thursday before flying to the West Coast while the Dodgers won 11-0 in San Francisco in a night game.

That left Cincinnati 3½ games behind the Dodgers and four back in the loss column. It means Cincinnati should win at least two of the three games if it is going to stay close to the Dodgers down the stretch.

Both clubs had easy times warring up for the series.

The Dodgers were able to rest Marshall—although Walt Alston has often brought him in this year in lopsided games—because A. Downing coasted on a two-hitter. It was the first complete game in more than a year for Downing, who was capped a five-run second inning touched only for singles by Dave Rader in the third and Bobby Bonds in the fourth.

Bill Russell drove in four of the Los Angeles runs on three singles, and an infield out while Ron Cey and Steve Garvey had after Atlanta took a 4-0 lead in two RBIs each as the Dodgers piled up 15 hits off five San Francisco pitchers.

The Reds had to play two games before their flight to the West Coast because their Wednesday night game with Atlanta was rained out after five innings tied 1-1.

Cesar Geronimo hit a grand slam in the first game and Johnny Bench was so impressed that he did the same in the second game.

Geronimo's grand slam hit in the opener and came after a five-run second inning exploded for six runs in the eighth to down the faltering Pirates, who now lead St. Louis by only 1½ games in the NL.

East. Mike Schmidt's three-run homer and Del Unser's two-run pinch homer were the key blows of the inning. Starter Jerry Reuss took a three-hit shutout into the eighth but he triumph. Bench's homers gave him 30 for the season and 115 bombed.

Cards 12, Mets 5 0

The Cards, who needed 25 innings and 7 hours and 4 minutes to subdue New York Wednesday, finished off the Mets in nine innings and two hours and 57 minutes Thursday. Reggie Smith drove in four runs but an error by Dave Schneck was a big difference.

He dropped a fly ball in the sixth inning that allowed three runners to score as the Cards, trailing 4-0, exploded for six runs.

Expos 2, Cubs 1

Barry Foote's eighth-inning sacrifice fly gave Montreal the victory over the Cubs. Mike Torrez, who went 8 1-3 innings, got credit for his 12th win.

Padres 4, Astros 1

Bill Greif pitched a six-hitter to hand San Diego the victory over Houston. Fred Kendall homered for the Padres, who pinned the loss on Tom Griffin.

Murphy's 65: 'A Good Round'

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Six-year tour veteran Bob Murphy, now going on four years without a win, nursed a slender one-stroke lead into today's second round of the $300,000 World Open Golf tournament.

Playing in his sixth tournament since being sidelined for four months earlier in the year by a torn ligament in his left thumb, the 29-year-old Floridian carded a six-under-par 65 in Thursday's opening round to better obscure Don Iverson by one stroke.

Two strokes back at the start of the day's round were a foursome of established golfers — Lee Trevino, Dave Stockton, Bert Greene and Frank Beard.

Murphy, who had his third and most recent victory in the 1970 Hartford Open, was modest about his round.

He conceded it was a "good round"—his best this year, in fact—but said it was "really nothing fantastic—except my iron play was solid." He also was pleased with his work on the greens, using an "old Arnold Palmer model" putter he switched to at the Tournament Players championship in Atlanta, where he finished sixth.

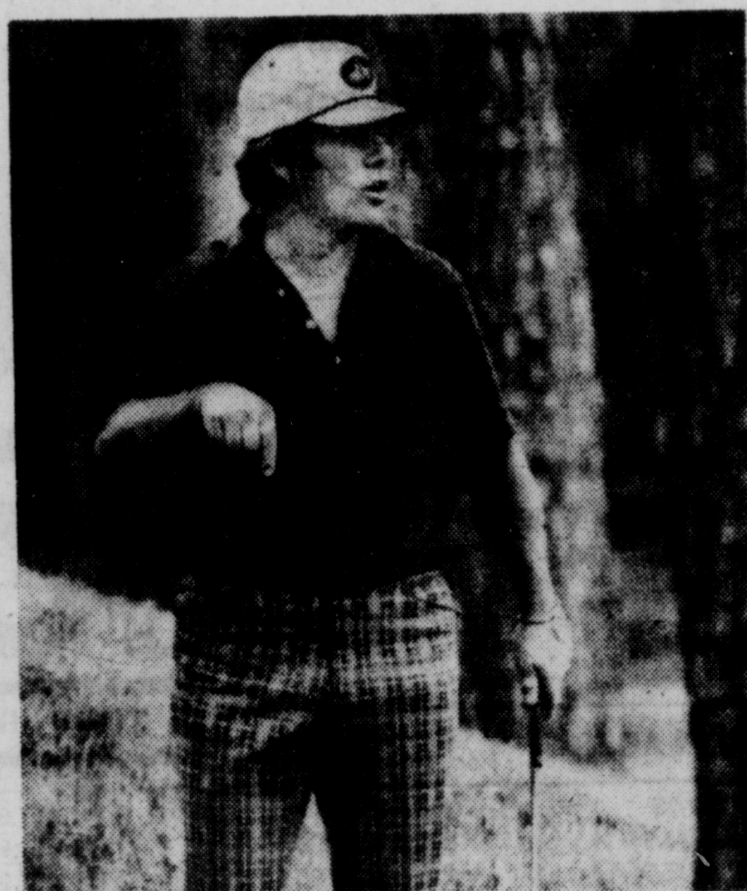

"Every putt I hit just felt real good and comfortable," he said. Murphy bagged his 34-31-65 on the 7,007 yard no. 2 course at Pinehurst Country club. The field of 180 was split between No. 2 and the 6,885-yard No. 4 course. For both courses, par is 35-36-71.

Iverson, of La Crosse, Wis., made his five-under 66 on No. 4. Murphy plays No. 2 today as the golfers swap courses.

Trevino, Beard and Greene played No. 4 while Stockton got a four under 67 on No. 2 Thursday.

Another stroke back at two-under 68 and within easy charging distance were golfers leading moneywinner Jack Nicklaus, Lee Elder, Charles Coody and Nate Starks, who joined the tour just last year.

Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Hale Irwin stood at 69, followed by seven golfers grouped at 70—Mike Reason, practice on No. 2.

THAT'S ROUGH — Lee Trevino has a few choice words to say about what he was like in the rough just off the 12th green after he had chipped to within inches of the pin in a birdie attempt during first round of World Open Golf Tournament. (UPI)

Buddy Allin, Rod Funseth, Terry Wilcox, Andy North, David Graham and Jimmy Wright.

The throng clustered at even par 71 included Australian Bruce Crampton and J.C. Snead. Arnold Palmer had a fat 78, Johnny Miller a 73 and Sam Snead and Gary Player had 74s.

With the players spread over two courses, there was naturally much discussion of which was the toughest. Most cast their ballot for No. 2, the most widely known layout here.

But not Trevino, who was playing No. 4 for the first time Thursday. He skipped the premier world open last year and after winning the World Series of Golf Monday, arrived so late he only had a chance to practice on No. 2.

footer on 13, a five-footer at 14, an 18-footer on 15 and a 10-footer at 17.

Murphy tore a ligament in his left thumb at the Sea Pines Classic in Hilton Head, S.C., early this year and was off the tour four months, most of the time with his hand in a cast.

Despite the loss, he has won about $33,000 this year, with his best finish a tie for fourth in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Bell Accepts Hinchey Challenge

KINGSTON honest scrutiny of the voter. Open debate has always been in the best democratic tradition."

Although they didn't meet in Thursday night's debate at Temple Emanuel, State Assembly candidates H. Clark Bell and Maurice Hinchey will square off in "several" debates with the first one set for Oct. 9 in Saugerties.

Bell did not attend last night's debate due to a previous commitment. Former Kingston Legislator Melvin Mones represented Bell in the debate against Hinchey.

Hinchey, the Democrat-Liberal candidate who was defeated by about 9,000 votes by incumbent Republican Conservative Bell in 1972, has challenged Bell to a series of six debates which Hinchey suggests should be held in Stone Ridge, Ellenville, Woodstock, Saugerties, New Paltz and Kingston. Hinchey had issued a similar challenge in 1972 but he and Bell only met once, briefly, in a debate in Woodstock, Bell's home town.

In writing to Bell, Hinchey says, "I'm sure that you are just as anxious as I am to confine the 1974 campaign to the real issues affecting Ulster County and New York State."

Bell, responding by letter to Hinchey, writes that his campaign is structured at this point but that it provides for "several candidate forums at which we will be appearing in a debate format which will provide an opportunity for you to cover the content of your communication."

Hinchey, in writing Bell said, "I certainly think that those of use seeking public office should expose the caliber of our thinking and beliefs to the Albany."

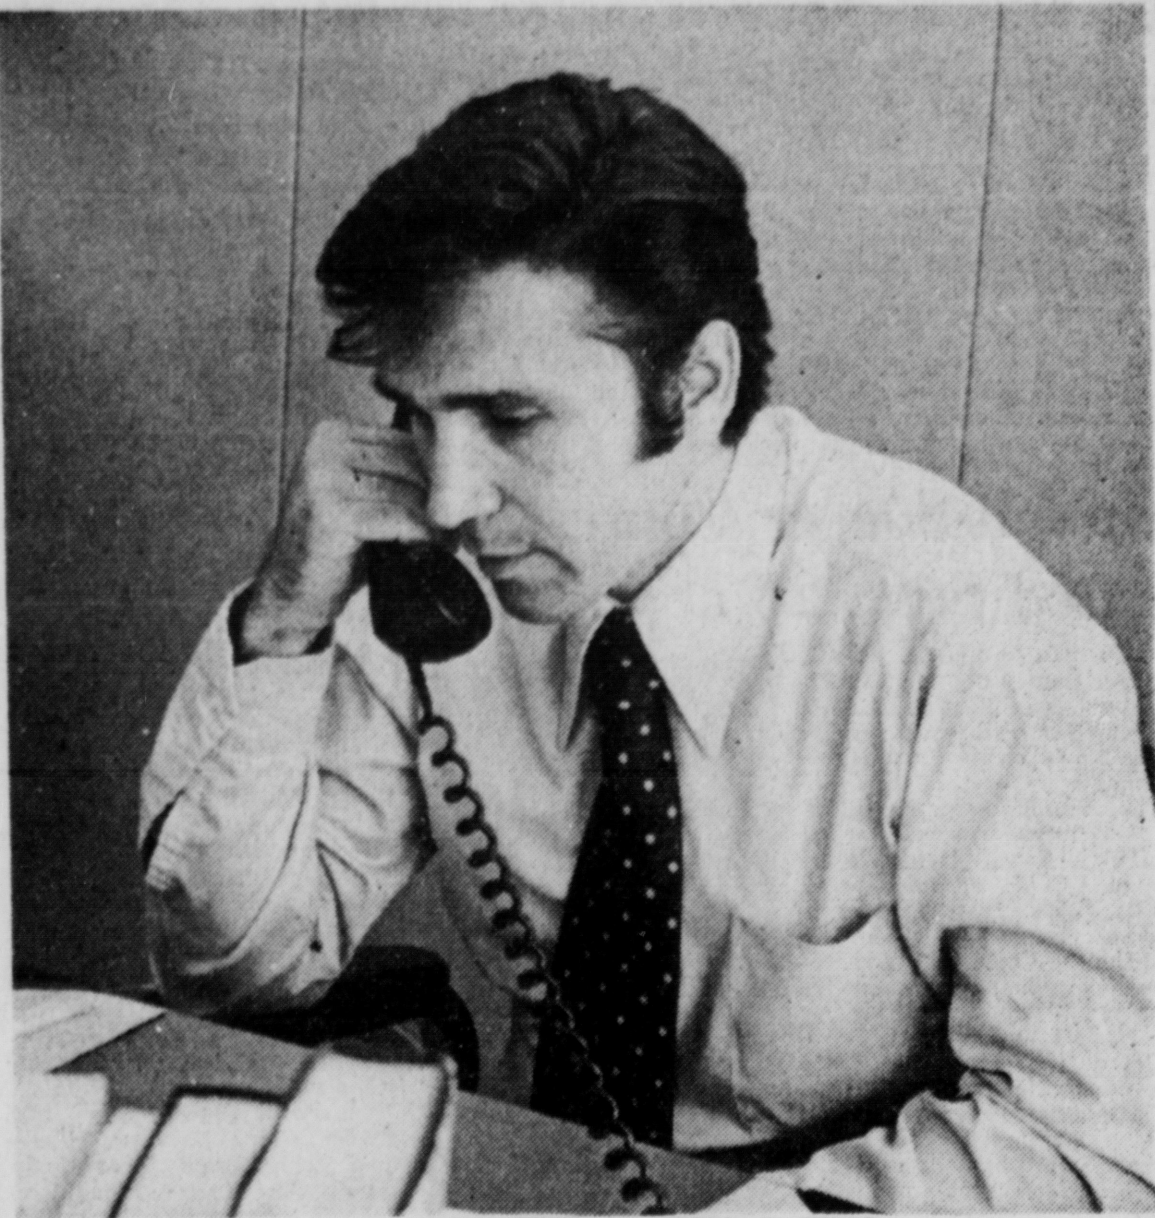

Bell, responding, writes, "I will be conducting an affirmative program, speaking out on the issues affecting Ulster County and state government. I assume you will be doing the same."

"In your communication, you state that you are 'anxious' to confine the 1974 campaign to the real issues affecting Ulster County and New York State. I would think that you would not and should not have any anxieties to do other than that," Bell concludes.

Bell's last statement is an apparent reference to Hinchey's criticism of Bell for not speaking out on the Watergate issue. Bell, like most state Republicans, contends Watergate is a federal issue and does not affect campaigns in New York State. Hinchey contends it is a moral issue with the broadest of implications.

Bell, 39, will be seeking his fourth term in the State Assembly, first winning election in 1968. The year previous he was elected a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention from Ulster-Dutchess Counties. Bell is an attorney by profession.

Hinchey, 35, is seeking elective office for the second time following his unsuccessful run against Bell in 1972. He is one of Ulster County's Democratic state committeemen. Hinchey works as supervisor for professional licensing for the State Education Department in thinking and beliefs to the Albany.

City Poll Is Revealed

SAUGERTIES figures would sound more reliable than Bell's to most impartial observers."

Hinchey admitted that his poll wasn't as sophisticated as the one conducted by Bell:

"I don't have the kind of money Bell has to hire big city outfits to conduct a poll for me. But I am lucky enough to have in my campaign organization a man formerly associated with a top polling organization. Through his help and that of many volunteer workers we are obtaining what we think is a very accurate profile of the Ulster County voter."

The Democratic candidate added, "I think it is important to consider the circumstances under which Bell had his poll conducted. He was worried at the time about the effects of the impeachment proceedings would have on Republican chances in November. At a time when most Republicans were taking a stand, Bell still had not spoken out. He explained this later as due to the fact that it was not a proper issue in the Assembly campaign. Strictly speaking, he was correct, of course, and I will not criticize him for the stand he took. Nevertheless, there were many voters who would have liked him to take a stand on an issue which had touched the moral conscience of the while nation."

Hinchey suggested, however, that as his own views become known to more and more people, the recognition gap between himself and Bell will be narrowed.

Hinchey also commented on the differences between the results of his own poll and one that Bell conducted recently. "According to Bell's poll," said Hinchey, "he was one of the most popular men in New York State so far as Ulster County voters were concerned, out-drawing some of the most important names in Republican politics. Now that's a little hard to believe. I think my own

"At the outset of the Pure Waters program, local government share of costs was a minimum of 40 per cent with state and federal government contributing the balance," Biggane noted. "Over the years, through amendments to the state and federal program, the cost to municipalities has been reduced to 12 1/2 per cent."

These include projects completed in the Village of Ellenville, Village of New Paltz, Town of Ulster and the City of Kingston in Ulster County. Biggane noted. Total cost of the four projects is $7,022,515, with state grants totaling $2,106,754 and federal grants totaling $3,126,800.

In addition to the 41 projects now operating in DEC's Region 3, nine projects are now under construction and another 31 are being designed. Included in the latter are the Highland Sewer

$633,000 in Bond Anticipation

Kingston Trust Low Bidder on City Notes

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The city of Kingston opened bids on $633,000 worth of bond anticipation notes on Thursday and got the equivalent of the 45-cent gallon of gasoline, high by traditional standards but "very good in today's market."

Kingston Trust was low bidder at 6.95 per cent and as it turned out, was the first of four bids to be opened. "I'm shocked already," quipped a representative from one of the other three banks on hand for the bid opening at city hall.

First National Bank of Highland submitted a bid for 7.25 per cent, the closest any of the other banks got to Kingston Trust's low bid. Bankers Trust Hudson Valley came in at 7.60 while Marine Midland Bank of Southeastern New York was high at 7.90.

The bid opening was conducted by Richard J. Michaels, representing the city's bonding advisors, Fiscal Advisors Inc. of Cicero and Hicksville.

Michaels commended City Treasurer Francis H. Law for his "prudent management" of the city funds in consolidating a number of bonding authorizations into the one bond anticipation note offering.

Michaels suggested that the city got a better rate on the larger amount rather than floating individual issues while at the same time saving money on their fees associated with bond issues.

Michaels estimated that the city will have the use of the money for free for up to 18 months since the city is paying less than seven per cent while it can realize up to 11 per cent in short term certificates of deposit. The notes can run up to five years.

The city's fiscal advisor noted that Onondaga County, with a Triple-A rating (Kingston has a Double-A) paid 7.14 per cent for money on Wednesday and only a few hours before the Kingston bid opening, the village of Fredonia paid 7.4 per cent on $685,000 it was borrowing.

The money will be used to meet obligations approved by the Common Council in the past six months adding up to almost $670,000.

The bulk of it, $329,502 was included the Jim Jackson road will not be delivered for some time. The Department of Public Works planer on Broadway, Albany 300 working days equipment approved by the Avenue and East Chester Street. Law said capital notes for Council and the mayor this past June. Finally, there is $112,775 for those projects, in the amount the purchase of a new aerial of $34,319, will be floated with ladder truck for the fire department. Law expects to make the near future.

Also on the list is $80,650 for emergency work on Spruce Street along with $144,392 for most of his investment money the 1974 street program which on that item as the fire truck include the Jim Jackson road will not be delivered for some time. The Department of Public Works planer on Broadway, Albany 300 working days equipment approved by the Avenue and East Chester Street. Law said capital notes for Council and the mayor this past June. ## Angry Consumers Threaten March

By JON POWERS

ALBANY

A Public Service Commission examiner's recommendation that Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. be allowed to raise its rates by an average of 14 per cent — as well as recent proposals by government officials that utilities be encouraged to pass higher costs on to their customers — has prompted some embittered Ulster county Consumers to threaten a "march on Albany" to air their grievances on higher electricity costs.

Belle Sundeen, chairman of the Concerned Consumers of Lower Ulster County, termed those recent developments "intolerable" for homeowners who have been saddled with constantly increasing utility bills since 1973. "Government seems to have made the decision that it's not important whether we survive economically, as long as the utilities do," added Mrs. Sundeen.

"At one point, we voluntarily withheld payment of our electric bills," she noted, "now it's reached the point where some people have no other choice. They just can't afford to pay."

Mrs. Sundeen said the protest march to Albany isn't definite at this time because plans have to be formulated and contacts made with other consumer organizations. "But it is being actively considered," she said.

If the march does come off, one stop the protestors are sure to make is the PSC offices at 44 Holland Avenue. Mrs. Sundeen was livid over PSC examiner Edward L. Cohen's recommendation this week that Central Hudson be granted a 14.4 per cent rate hike.

In November, 1973, Central Hudson applied for an average 10 per cent rate hike, and then amended that figure to 17 per cent in February of this year. If approved, the average residential customer's utility bill would have increased 23 per cent.

In April, the PSC staff, comprised of accountants, engineers and legal experts, recommended that Central Hudson's requested rate hike be reduced to 13.8 per cent (19 per cent for residential customers).

On Monday, Cohen suggested a 14.4 per cent across-the-board increase, which would result in a 20 per cent hike for the average residential customer.

The Public Service Commission is expected to announce its decision sometime in January, and will probably follow close to the examiner's recommendations.

In his 105-page report, Cohen acknowledged the widespread opposition voiced on the local utility's rate hike application.

He presided over hearings in January, March and April, where "unsworn statements were presented by over 30 individuals, speaking for themselves or on behalf of various municipalities and groups . . . (and) . . . Cohen added, "It is . . . last year."

essential that the public's pleas be heeded and that any increases authorized herein be no greater than required to permit (Central Hudson) to continue to render safe and adequate service."

Cohen then proceeded to eliminate some $777,000 from Central Hudson's request for added revenues, but disallowed another $1,441,000 in cutbacks that had been recommended by the PSC staff. He proposed that the utility be allowed to collect an additional $11,400,000 in revenues through higher rates; Central Hudson had asked for $12,177,000.

In denouncing Cohen's recommendations, Mrs. Sundeen said, "The fuel adjustment charge now constitutes 47 per cent of the utility bill. When that is coupled with the 20 per cent increase that examiner Cohen has recommended for Central Hudson, it means that the average customer's utility bill will have increased 67 per cent over last year."

"The obvious sincerity with which the economic problems of the retired, the aged, and the poor were articulated cannot fail to evoke sympathetic concern, despite a recognition that public anger directed toward (Central Hudson) and this Commission reflected a much deeper dissatisfaction with inflation in general."

Cohen added, "It is . . . last year."

CLAUDE MONTEUX . . . RESIGNS

Monteux Resigns The Philharmonic

POUGHKEEPSIE/amateur organization with a

Claude Monteux, Music Director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society for the past 15 years, has submitted his resignation, to become effective July 1, 1975.

Monteux, under whom the orchestra greatly expanded its activities, cited other projects to which he hopes to devote more time as the reason for his resignation.

In his letter of resignation to David Aldeborgh, president of the Society, Monteux wrote, "After 15 years as Music Director, I am writing to let you know that the coming season (1974-75) is to be my last with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. The Carnegie Hall Concert (to be held April 4, 1975) will climax a very fruitful era, for which I stand extremely proud — but the future should belong to another guiding hand."

"My own plans for the future include more guest appearances, more solo playing, some composition and some hard work on projects which have been neglected because of lack of time," Monteux continued, asking that the resignation be made public as soon as possible. Under Monteux's leadership, the orchestra grew from an amateur organization with a season of three concerts and an annual budget of $7,000 to a tri-county regional orchestra with an annual budget of $450,000 and a season of over 40 concerts. It is the only symphony orchestra ever to receive the New York State Council on the Arts Award in 1968.

Monteux also founded the Haydn Festival Orchestra and various chamber groups, and under his leadership the Society has been responsible for approximately 200 musical events per season. Through the years, Monteux has shown a special dedication to youth, reflected in related activities of the Society which sponsors a training orchestra, runs a music school, presents an international competition for young string players and gives a series of youth concerts featuring soloists of high school age.

In accepting the resignation with regret, Aldeborgh said he will be "sorely missed by all music lovers."

The Board of Directors of the Society has formed a special committee to select a new music director.

Gardiner Residents Protest Over Plans

GARDINER

A protest by about 40 Gardiner residents, against the eventual use of a 19.5-acre shale and gravel bank the town is about to acquire, for a landfill site, highlighted Thursday night's meeting of the Gardiner Town Board.

Town Supervisor George Majestic said after the meeting that the site was being acquired for its shale and gravel, and their use in town road building. He said once these resources were all used, the site located a Shaft and South Mountain Roads could be used for a landfill.

The local residents protested that a landfill would hurt their property values, Majestic said. He said he pointed to a 100-acre parcel adjacent to the present landfill, which he said went from $5,500 in price, to $17,000, to $70,000 in successive sales as an indication that property values will not be hurt.

The parcel will cost $28,000, and the transaction was to be completed today. "We feel it was a good buy," said Majestic.

In other action, the board set a special meeting for Thursday, Sept. 26, at 7:30 p.m., for a discussion of town taxes and the possibility that they may be in . . .

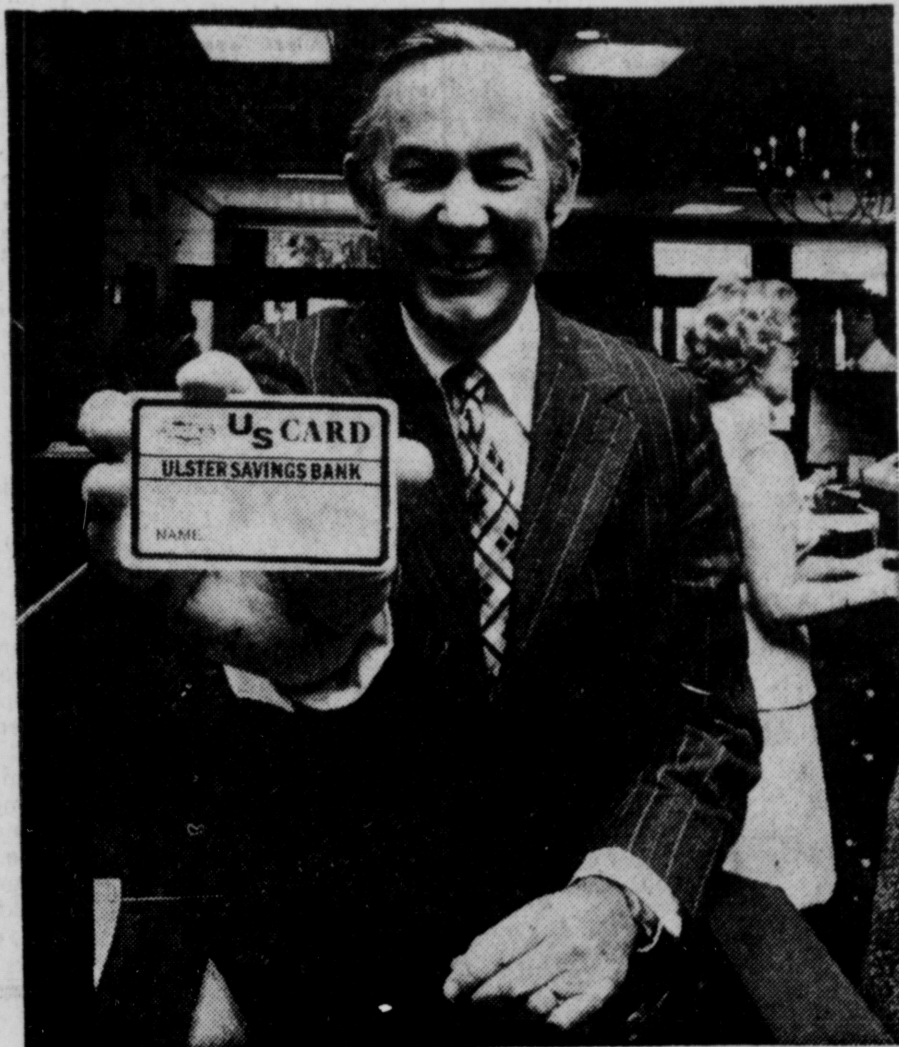

The town board voted to follow the state guidelines in the new "Sunshine Law" providing public access to town records, except in the case of "reasonable requests," for "reasonable requests," they voted to be even more liberal. Majestic said town records had always been "wide open," anyway.

Majestic said he had received numerous inquiries about when cable television would come to Gardiner. He said what was holding it up was the slow response of towns people to the questionnaires sent out on the matter by the town's cablevision commission.

Town Clerk Vivian McCord said over 800 questionnaires had been sent out, with something over 200 replies received.

Majestic reported that Nelsen Redi-Mix Concrete Inc., of Lake Katrine, had put a trucking charge on the concrete it had supplied to the town pool site. He said they never told him there would be any trucking charge. The board authorized Majestic to pay the part of the bill he thought "right and just," which means the cost of the cement; he will speak to the firm about the trucking charge.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am to be married in December. My fiancé is in the Air Force and, to save money, he bought my engagement ring at the PX on base. But he won't be able to take a leave to come home until a week before the wedding. That means he won't be able to give me my engagement ring until then. I would like to have my picture taken to send with the engagement announcement to our local newspaper. My mother says I can't do this because I don't have a ring to show people if they ask. I say I can because we are indeed engaged.

We would appreciate a solution as soon as possible.

Dear Roberta: You really don't have any problem at all. An engagement ring is NOT necessary for an engagement. In fact, many women never receive one at all, and other couples wait until the man can give his wife a much finer ring than he could afford before their marriage.

Have your picture taken, and send the announcement to your paper now.

Dear Mrs. Post: A girl who works in my office got married recently. There are 20 other girls employed, and she invited 16 to the wedding, leaving four out. I was not one of the four, but I considered it extremely rude. Please give your opinion.

Dear Melissa: It was either thoughtless or cruel to leave out four of twenty. I, a larger number were omitted, there would be no hurt feelings. But when almost everyone was included, it was clearly not a question of finances and space, and the implication was that those four were simply not worthy of an invitation.

Using Past Heart Attack as Phony Excuse?

DEAR ABBY: I am 50 and my husband, Walter, is 52. Two years ago he had a heart attack, but he recovered and is now enjoying excellent health.

Walter plays tennis at least three times every week, so he's not exactly an invalid, right?

However, when it comes to lovemaking, I am told not to "bother him" because he doesn't want to take any chances on damaging his heart.

Before his coronary, he wasn't the world's greatest lover, but now he has an excuse. (Or has he?)

Please ask one of your medical consultants and let me know. Don't advise to ask Walter's doctor because he is also Walter's tennis buddy. Thanks.

MISSING SOMETHING
DEAR MISSING: I consulted Dr. Donald B. Effler, the famous Cleveland Clinic heart surgeon, who is cooler than Denton Cooley and hotter than Michael DeBakey. His response: "If Walter, age 52, is enjoying regular tennis, but will not take care of his homework, three possibilities come to mind: a) Walter's got something going on the outside, b) Walter's wife has lost something that must have looked good to him a number of years ago or c) Walter is one of those rare men who loses interest in sex at 52. In any event, judging from his wife's letter, Walter's past heart attack is most likely a phony excuse.

"Very few coronary patients are advised against sexual activity at home. This simple observation, made long ago, gave rise to the aphorism, 'There's nothing dangerous about sex, it's the chasing after it that can kill you.'"

DEAR ABBY: Our 27-year-old son is a college graduate who lives and works a few hundred miles from us. Two years ago he met a very nice girl three years his junior, and they have gone together ever since.

My husband and I hope to see them get married — since they are devoted to each other young people are not mine, but I am hurt just the same. Must I accept this arrangement publicly, go along with it and keep my thoughts to myself?

UNHAPPY MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: If you want to maintain good relationship with your son, yes.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that small-town bartender that he doesn't have to lie. If someone phones the bar and asks if Joe Blow is there, all he has to do is page Joe Blow by calling his name loudly.

If Joe Blow doesn't want to answer the page, it's his business. That way the bartender isn't in the middle.

LADY BARTENDER
DEAR LADY: Leave it to a lady to figure out how to keep from getting in the middle.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

POWER FAILURE AND YOUR HOME FREEZER

The hurricane season has started with Carmen passing by and Elaine a possible threat! Should a power failure stop your home freezer from running, do you know how to keep the food stored inside from spoiling? Says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist, First, keep the freezer door closed as much as possible. Opening the door lets warm air in and raises the inside temperature.

Try to find out how long the electrical power will be off. If the power will be on again in a few hours, your frozen food is safe. Should the power return within a day, your food is usually safe if the frozen food cabinet is at least half full and you keep the door closed. A fully loaded cabinet will usually keep food frozen, for two days.

How long food will stay frozen in your freezer depends upon the kind of food and freezer. Frozen meat will not warm up as fast as bakery products. A well-insulated freezer will keep food frozen much longer than one with little insulation. And the larger the freezer, the longer food will stay frozen.

In an emergency situation with chances of the freezer being off for more than a day, add dry ice to the freezer cabinet if you can. Or, if possible, transfer your food to a freezer-locker plant in an area unaffected by the storm.

After a Fashion

The Spice of Tice . . . It Makes 'Under' Outerwear

By MARIAN CHRISTY

NEW YORK — No longer is lingerie — in all its dreamy splendor — confined only to the privacy of boudoir.

Ever since eugenic designers discovered a dearth of pretty clothes, they daringly raided lingerie collections for nightgowns and other at-home wear that could go to public functions without a trace of shame.

"It's all part of the fantastic phenomena of a changing fashion world," says rising designer, 30-year-old Bill Tice of ESP, a year-old lingerie firm which is turning out nightgowns that double as wedding gowns. Perceptive ESP is doing a reported $4 million volume with its first two collections.

Tiny Tice, a boyish-looking man from Tipton, Indiana, recently lined one of his most ladylike granny gowns for Vogue Beauty Editor, Shirley Lord to wear at her wedding aboard a sumptuous yacht moored off the coast of Monaco.

"The idea," says Tice, "is that tradition doesn't bind really chic women who have a creative attitude about clothes." Tice — who grew up in movie houses because the cinema represented the one fantasy offered in his farm-oriented home town — is making his point.

Best seller in his current collection $50-150 is a V-neck gown with a draped bodice and voluminous skirt. It comes in a rainbow of romantic colors and: "It's what I remember Ginger Rogers wearing to dance in the dark with Fred Astaire," says Tice. The multipurpose gown either goes to bed, is worn by a hostess or heads for a gala black tie gala.

Pailletted gowns are classic, traditional favorites with party goers. But unfortunately, they often weigh a ton and cost a small fortune — $1,000-and-up because the paillettes often are stitched by hand. Tice recently created a lightweight pailletted halter gown to sell at $400. Nearly 500 sold in one week and his first client was Ethel Kennedy, who bought two.

"I designed this look originally for Arlene Dahl to wear for an at-home dinner party," says Tice who decided that Dahl's "experimental" gown should be translated for mass marketing.

"The modern elegant entertains at home more than ever," says Tice about the spiraling trend. "Restaurant prices are horrendous. Even more important, there's a certain 'intimacy' about asking friends to socialize in your home. People want to relate one-to-one."

Tice's approach to party dressing is really a blur of the bedroom and ballroom. The clothes are as relaxed as sleepwear — but they have a fashion twist. The resort collection features a lace peignoir that can be either a bedroom cover-up or an evening coat — depending on whether you wear it with a bona fide nightgown or over wrap-on satin pajamas that can go public.

"Contact dancing, as opposed to the frantic rock of the '60s, is returning," says Tice who designs the clothes men love to touch. "There's a vast market for romantic fashions — which is why lingerie is fashion's wide awake segment."

Tice says he's got extra sensory perception and often puts it to use when designing a collection. Last week a fabric company failed to produce a special striped material he needed for a gown. The firm's machine had broken down. "I quietly concentrated till I actually visualized the exact material I wanted," says Tice. "I envisioned it arriving at my door." Within 48 hours the company called to say the machine was repaired and the material in the process of being delivered. "The truth is," he says, "that I believe in miracles."

Tice's collection is not without its spiritual implications. He won't touch muddy colors because he thinks of them as "negatives." Tice, whose clothes are in 500 stores, believes certain colors are symbolic of an uplifted state of mind and they're the only shades he uses for ESP.

On the positive implication of colors: "Green represents healing and health. Blue is a reaching up toward heaven. Yellow indicates wisdom. Pink is love in all its glory. Red is a sign of ambition."

Some of Tice's celebrity customers stick to one color as a kind of signature. Princess Grace of Monaco wears only Tice's whites. On the other hand, Mrs. Johnny Carson, a cover girl type, likes everything in every color. Reportedly she startled the people in Tice's New York showroom recently when she ordered 100 items in a cross-section of colors.

He says: "As a designer, I neither dictate nor judge. I just design."

Family Day Picnic

The eighth annual family day picnic sponsored by the Olive Republican Club will take place Sunday, Sept. 15 at Lester Davis Park in West Shokan. Families will gather in the pavilion at noon for luncheon. All attending are asked to bring a favorite covered dish. Music, dancing, ball games as well as an assortment of games for the young will be featured. The event will be held rain or shine.

Round and Square Dance Slated At Firehouse in Rhinebeck

The Women's Auxiliary of Rhinebeck Fire Department will sponsor a round and square dance Saturday, Sept. 28 at Rhinebeck firehouse, 76 East Market Street. Music for dancing will be provided by Cahill Brothers of Pine Plains from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Mrs. George Mielich, president of the Auxiliary, invites the public to attend. Snacks and beverages will be included in the price of the ticket. Reservations may be made with Donna Vickery or Mary Dee Eighmy, both of Rhinebeck.

ESP DESIGNER Bill Tice does a night gown that can double as a wedding gown. He says it can also be worn to parties at-home and elsewhere.

Fall Meeting

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees will hold their first fall meeting Saturday at YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, at 2 p.m. Plans will be started for the banquet celebrating the 20th anniversary of local chapter No. 461.

Several vacancies occur in the Association due to illness, death or change of address. New members are needed to fill these places. F. L. Spencer, president, urges active eligible Federal retirees to attend.

Italian Dinner

Plaza Heights Homemakers will hold their first seasonal meeting Thursday, Sept. 19. A complete Italian dinner is being planned at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Yaeger at 22 Willow Road. Various committee chairmen will be appointed that evening.

Officers serving the Club for 1974-75 include Mrs. Yaeger, chairman; Mrs. Alice Byrne, vice chairman; Mrs. Becky Ingber, secretary; and Mrs. Mary Mourer, treasurer.

Football Game

Parents Without Partners No. 383 will hold a family touch-football game Sunday, Sept. 15. Carpools will form at Big Scot's at 1:30 p.m. Details may be had by contacting PWP, Kingston.

Association Meeting Held

ALBANY
The annual meeting of the Patchen (in) Family Association was held recently at the Tom Sawyer Motor Inn, Albany with Ulster County delegates attending.

The family association met last year in Kingston when Clarence Hyde of this city was elected president. His successor, elected at the Albany meeting, is Ralph Patchen of Rochester.

Other officers for the coming year are William Patchen, Omaha, Neb., vice president; Robert Knox of Alexandria, Va., executive secretary and Erlen White of Buffalo, treasurer. Hyde was elected to the board of directors.

Delegates attending this year's meeting were from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, New York, Virginia, Massachusetts and Nebraska.

There are many Ulster County members through Charity Patchen wife of Frederick Becker who moved to South Rondout in Ulster County after residing in Blenheim. The association has a complete history and genealogy with pictures compiled in a 3000 page publication.

'America' Series At City Library

KINGSTON
The Kingston Area Library announces that it will be sponsoring a showing of Alistair Cooke's film series, "America," beginning Tuesday evening, Sept. 17, at the library, 399 Broadway. The program is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

The films will be shown for 13 consecutive Tuesdays and the public is invited. The program is recognized to be of particular value to junior high school and high school students, but should be of general interest to the entire community.

Evel Earned a Lot...But Figure Not Sure

NEW YORK (AP) — Re-Well, it was a fake. member that $6 million check. The promoters only gave that Evel Knievel was waving Knievel a $250,000 advance. The around before his rocket launch check was pure rubber — part into the Snake River Canyon? of the publicity that both Knie-vel and the promoters dreamed of $10 a person in closed circuit theaters throughout the country. Gate receipts at the canyon itself came to about $600,000. Robert Arum, the New York lawyer who heads Top Rank, Inc., the promoter of the motorcycle jump, has guaranteed Knievel the larger of either $6 million in cash or 60 per cent of all receipts, including the theater gate, promotional sales and other income, minus various unspecified promotional expenses to be paid to Top Rank. In the days before Knievel's "Sky-cycle" tumbled 700 feet into the canyon, he had been displaying the $6 million check, offering, for instance, to pay for a round of drinks with it. That was a promotional gimmick, it was later revealed. The check was a fake. Arum reiterated his earlier estimate that theater receipts would total about $15 million, even the revised figure may be on the high side. After promotional fees are subtracted, Arum says Knievel's share of the gross will be about $9 million. If that figure holds, then Knievel's net earnings would come to between $3 to 3.5 million after the 50 to 60 per cent taxes he expects to pay, plus the $1 million he has already laid out for the launching ramp, three "Sky-cycles," leasing the canyon and other expenses.

Coronary Care Course for Nurses

KINGSTON

A four-week, tuition-free

Intensive Coronary Care Course

for practicing registered nurses and licensed practical nurses,

sponsored by the Kingston

Hospital in cooperation with the Mid-Hudson Heart Association,

Inc., began this week.

Sessions are held at the hospital 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Mondays through Fridays and feature lectures supplemented by clinical experience. Staff

nurses from hospitals

throughout the Hudson Valley are among the registrants for the course.

Four guest speakers have been scheduled during the course, and these dates are considered "open house" for all practicing R.N.s and L.P.N.s

whether or not participating in the entire course. Guest speaker sessions are from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. in the hospital's second floor conference room.

Dates, topics and speakers are:

On Thursday, topics discussed were — "Preventing Complications Using Coronary Patients,"

History and Examination,"

Christina Haas, R.N., M.A.,

clinical nursing specialist, New York Hospital.

Wednesday, Sept. 18 —

"Pulmonary Complications

Associated with Acute M.I.s,"

Grace E. Brown, R.N., M.A.,

clinical supervisor and clinical specialist, Cardiopulmonary

Vascular Unit, New York

Hospital.

Friday, Sept. 27 — "Stages of Healing and Nursing Implications (Excluding Arrhyth-mias)" Sister Marita Rose,

R.N., clinical nursing specialist,

St. Vincent Hospital, New York

City.

Wednesday Oct. 2 — "Cardiac

Rehabilitation — Discharge

Planning," Sara J. Wells, R.N.,

M.N., cardiovascular clinical specialist, Presbyterian

Hospital, New York City.

This is the tenth teaching session. Begun with the advent of intensive coronary care units

in area hospitals, the course was designed to impart the specialized knowledge needed in staffing these units. It is now offered semi-annually to keep abreast of developments in this field, and because of the turnover in the nursing profession.

The course is designed to provide a basic working knowledge of nursing care for acutely ill cardiac patients, with emphasis particularly upon the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of arrhythmias

(irregularities of the heart beat). Extensive use is made of audio-visual material including slides, tapes and demonstrations.

Here's what "Road and Track" says about the handling characteristics of the TVR

"The TVR 2500 is a front-mid-engine car, in the same way that the Dino 246 and the Pantera are rear-mid-engine cars. The 'mid' means that the engine is within the wheelbase, and front or rear locates the engine in relation to the driver. Tucking the machinery within the wheelbase gains
for the TVR a low polar moment of inertia, just as in racing cars and GT cars.
The TVR's cornering power of 0.783g sounds mighty good by itself, but to appreciate it fully one must look at the test summary and realize that of the road cars we've tested lately, only the Dino and the Lamborghini Jarama will whip around the skidpad faster than the TVR.

The TVR is a car that sticks to the road, is properly balanced, has independent suspension and quick and accurate steering. There is plenty of suspension travel, so the TVR can go over rough pavement nearly as fast as over smooth, and that's very fast indeed.
As an added bonus, it is a car that gets 26
MPG." (R. & T. April 1974)

Your Astrograph

Saturday, September 14

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will not be giving your full attention to your work. It's best if you attempt less but try to do it well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Having a good time is likely to be your major goal. Some form of overindulgence is likely. Have fun but be moderate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Folks you entertain at your home may have such a good time they won't know when to leave. Stock lots of extra goodies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep your plans flexible so you can make last-minute changes. You won't be disappointed if you can't do what you first intended.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're shopping today you're likely to buy several things you really don't need. Make a list before you go and stick to it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The way you present yourself is still under close scrutiny by others. Be sure to show them your most attractive profile.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't pass on any information to others unless you're absolutely sure of your source. What you repeat may later cause embarrassment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Outside activities are going to require some stringent budgeting over the weekend. Otherwise, you'll pay more for a good time than is wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may get involved in some role-playing where you'll tend to embellish your position a bit through some form of pretense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a shade too sensitive in dealing with others today. This could leave you feeling you've been taken advantage of.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will experience a little disappointment from one with whom you have close ties. Don't let it spoil your day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a bit too agreeable today. You're likely to make decisions based on that which is easiest rather than that which is wisest.

Sept. 14, 1974

This will be a very active year for you socially with the accent on the strengthening of a present romance or involvement in a new one. Some travel is also likely.

Opening lead—Q♣

Here is another hand to illustrate the use of the rule of the ace and the king.

South would have held a very sound one-sided response without the ace of hearts. Hence, when North jumps to three spades, South makes a mild slam try with his bid of four hearts.

North has full values for his jump to three spades and he notes that all these values are in quick winning tricks. He decides to use Blackwood with full intention of bidding six if South shows one ace. When South shows two aces North tries five notrump but settles for six after South shows no kings.

All slams aren't ironclad. The club finesse is going to lose and a heart lead would defeat this one, but after East makes his normal opening lead of the queen of diamonds South has time to draw trumps and lose the club finesse. That will be his only loser since he can discard his three small hearts on dummy's long clubs.

Police Escort Children To Boston Public Schools

BOSTON (UPI) — Motorcycle police escorted busloads of school children today for the second day of classes under a federal desegregation order marked by widespread 'boycotts' and sporadic violence.

Just as classes began, Thomas I. Atkins, president of the Boston chapter of the NAACP, who urged black parents not to send their children into South Boston, said he will go into U.S. District Court today to ask that federal marshals be provided to escort black students in and out of the area.

"I don't want our kids used as cannon fodder," Atkins said. Eight black youngsters suffered minor injuries Thursday when the buses they were riding home from South Boston High and the Gavin school were stoned by groups of whites. A community bus monitor also was injured. All received outpatient hospital treatment.

Today, only two white children were aboard the first bus that arrived at Roxbury High School.

Fifteen motorcycle police escorted buses into South Boston, High School and Gavin school, the two most troubled schools.

The police force outside South Boston school included 35 riot-trained tactical officers, 25 regular uniformed patrolmen, five motorcycle police, two captains, three lieutenants and one deputy superintendent.

Fifteen black workers from Freedom House, which is coordinating the busing and desegregation plan in the black children, and six arrests.

The most serious incidents occurred after school closed, when buses of blacks leaving South Boston High and the caused Mayor Kevin H. White Gavin middle schools were stoned by whites. Three students on the area and prompted dents and one 23-year-old bus driver were injured on one parents not to send their vehicle.

Five youngsters on another bus, for Freedom House bus also were hurt. All received outpatient treatment. One parents urging them to have son was arrested.

Boston has an estimated 94,000 public school students. About 38 percent of them are white students in the desegregation order affects about 45,000 students who are but was marred by several attacking different schools because of the desegregation. Of the 18,235 students including those to the black being bused, 8,510 are white and 9,725 are black.

New Ruler in Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — An American-educated general took over as Ethiopia's military strongman today, culminating a gradual, seven-month coup that began with army unrest and ended with the ouster of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Lt. Gen. Aman Michael Andom, 50-year-old leader of Ethiopia's military reformers, emerged from the shadows of behind-the-scenes rule to become chairman of the ruling Council of Ministers.

Ailing Crown Prince Asfaw Wossen, picked by the military as a puppet ruler in place of his once-mighty father, met with family members in his luxurious Geneva apartment to decide whether to accept.

The Armed Forces Committee reformers came into the open Thursday, deposing the 82-year-old, 100-pound, 5-foot-4 "Lion of Judah" for allegedly amassing billions of dollars in Swiss banks while his drought-stricken peasants starved.

In Washington, the State Department took the ouster in stride. "As we enjoyed good relations with the government of the emperor, we look forward to continuing these good relations with the new government," a spokesman said.

The new military rulers sent soldiers to the emperor's plush palace in Addis Ababa to take the world's longest-reigning monarch "to a special place for his personal safety."

Witnesses said the still-defiant Selassie balked at going, but was hauled off in the back seat of a cramped blue Volkswagen police van to the city's military headquarters. A large crowd gathered outside the army headquarters building shouting insults at the deposed "King of Kings" and chanting praises of the military.

"As from today, Sept. 12, his imperial majesty Haile Selassie has been deposed from office," a brief, blunt military decree said in reporting the demise of the diminutive monarch's 58-year-old rule.

The decree also suspended parliament, but promised free elections and a new constitution in the west African nation of 26 million.

Officers said the emperor, who defied the might of Mussolini's armies in 1936 but fell before the power of his own military, eventually bowed to the inevitable.

"I accept the present change in Ethiopia and acknowledge that such changes are also taking place elsewhere in the world," he was quoted as saying before being driven 19 miles to his nationalized country palace at Debre Zeit.

Selassie, the last absolute ruler in a 3,000-year-old monarchy tracing itself back to King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, joined 200 former government officials held in the palace on charges of corruption and abuse of power.

Lt. Gen. Andom, defense minister and chief of staff, attended Howard University while serving as military attaché of the Ethiopian Embassy in Washington 10 years ago. He received a bachelor's degree in government.

Crown Prince Wossen, 57, who was implicated in an abortive 1960 palace revolt, has led a thriving business. Hawken recuperating in Switzerland sold their wares on street land since a stroke two years corners.

Civilians shook the hands of Ethiopian soldiers sitting on tanks decorated with flowers. Patrolling Crowds gathered in some troops decorated their helmets streets to sing the military with green and black "Ethiopia anthem 'Ethiopia First.' Shops First" stickers.

Uneasy Peace in Mozambique

LOURENCO MARQUES, Portugal's new high commissioner for Mozambique, arrived from Lisbon to supervise the transition to independence and blamed the disturbances on "unacceptable and irresponsible agitators."

"I will use all the powers vested in me to guarantee you a safe future," Crespo said Thursday night in a radio speech. "Portugal's eyes are on her sons who always served with dignity and love."

Diplomats said Crespo was waiting to meet with Mozambique Liberation Front leaders, who were expected to arrive shortly.

Portugal signed an agreement last Saturday, giving the black group, known as Frelimo, a majority in an interim government to rule the territory until independence next June.

Some white settlers rebelled as the accord was signed, seizing key installations, including the airport and radio station.

Lisbon sent in fresh troops to end the insurrection, but the abortive revolt touched off rioting Tuesday and Wednesday in Mozambique, a east African territory of 7 million blacks and 250,000 whites.

The revolt and riots delayed the "immediate" establishment of a transitional government provided for in the independence agreement, which ends Frelimo's 10-year war against Portugal.

The Lisbon government put the death toll from clashes throughout Mozambique at 100, but the territory's Health Ministry said 60 died and 427 were injured.

In South Africa, authorities said the exodus of whites from the territory had become a trickle. An estimated 2,300 whites fled across the border during the rioting.

Chou Resignation Unlikely

TOKYO (AP) — Diplomats in Tokyo believe that the health of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is worse, but they see no evidence that he intends to resign in the immediate future.

Chou, 76, had a heart attack in May and has gradually withdrawn from official public life. He has not attended a public function since the celebration of Army Day on July 31.

A visiting U.S. congressional delegation stirred fresh speculation on Chou's condition last week when some of its members reported he could not receive them because his health had deteriorated.

This drew denials in Peking, but also a guarded admission that he is not as well as he was when he received Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., in his hospital room early in July.

For the first time in several years, Chou last week did not accompany a visiting head of state — President Gnassingbe Eyadema of Togo — when he left with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

'No Warning' . . .

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI) — Judy Colette Watson, the Eastern Airlines stewardess who walked away from Wednesday's Eastern Airlines crash virtually unscathed, said there was no warning of the pending disaster and no outcry aboard the plane.

The honey blonde, one of 13 to survive, appeared at a news conference Thursday and declared, "It's just nice to see people and faces and trees."

Sixty-nine persons lost their lives in the crash. The flight was Eastern 212, en route from Charleston, S. C. to Chicago via Charlotte.

"I wish I knew why I was so lucky," Mrs. Watson, a six-year veteran with Eastern Airlines, told a news conference. "I'm just so happy."

She stood by her husband, Mike, as she talked. They live in College Park, Ga.

She said there was no prior warning the sleek DC-9 was going to crash until it actually thudded to the ground in a cornfield and burst into flames about three miles short of Charlotte's Douglas Airport.

"My first impression was that the landing gear had failed," she said. "I saw flames and I knew we had crashed."

"My first thought was to do everything I could to get the people out. But the flames were right in front of me."

Mrs. Watson said she and a male passenger whose name she did not know broke out of a cockpit window and helped the injured co-pilot, James Daniels Jr., outside the burning plane.

Mrs. Watson said outside the plane and amidst the cries of the dying she felt the frustration and helplessness.

"I think my first real feeling was that 71 people were dying and there was nothing I could do," she said.
